State of the Judiciary Message

STATE OF THE JUDICIARY MESSAGE

Today I depart from tradition and offer, not my usual comments on the past, but instead a change of focus from the past to the future, from what is to what might be. While concentration on present concerns is a fulltime responsibility for each of us, on occasion we must be willing to free our minds from the daily routine and think of tomorrow. The problems of the future can be minimized only if we have the foresight to plan for likely change.

Virginia is a state in transition. I know that you share my pride in the distinguished history of the Virginia judicial system and my gratitude for the rich heritage which has been handed down from past generations. But what will we pass on to succeeding generations? Will our legacy be a judicial system which stands as proud, as stately, and as functional as the plantation homes along the James, or will be bequeath a system worn and crumbled like houses suffering from years of neglect and disrepair? Those in this room today are responsible not only for maintaining our present system but also for forging a pathway to the future. How, then, can we ensure that our system will be strong and responsive to the changing needs of our state and her citizens?

First, our system must have a sound foundation upon which future change can be built. Together with our predecessors, we have laid such a foundation in Virginia. Next, we must direct our energies toward the anticipation of needs. Even though our system will be subjected to short-term pressures and alterations, its long-range development must be in accordance with a well-conceived and well-designed blueprint which creates a structure capable of serving all citizens in the changing world of the next century. To develop this blueprint, we must form a vision of what the judicial system will need to be in the year 2000.

In November 1982, Governor Charles S. Robb created the Governor's Commission on Virginia's Future. This Commission brought together distinguished Virginians from all walks of life to give careful thought about the shape of Virginia's future. During this past year, the Judicial Council of Virginia, in developing the 1986-88 Comprehensive Judicial Plan, identified the need to create a similar Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System. Pursuant to Council's action, I shall convene members of the bench, the bar, the legislature, and the media, as well as lay citizens, and challenge them to be visionaries. I shall charge them with the task of defining the demands likely to face the Virginia judicial system in the twenty-first century and of recommending courses of action to address these requirements.

Because of the nature of this Commission, I want its members to probe a broad range of issues which may concern the judiciary in the future. While every recommendation of the Commission may not find ultimate favor, the research and insight of this body should prove invaluable in the final resolution of most any problem.

For a few moments, I want to share with you some of the issues I think the Commission might address. In mentioning these issues, I do not advocate or take a position on how they should be resolved. I merely call for thought, research, debate, discussion, and, hopefully, consensus on these topics.

I will suggest that the Commission be organized into six task forces, with each task force concentrating on the peculiar problems within a topical area, namely:

1. Projection of Current Trends
2. System Structure
3. Planning and Administration
4. Technology
5. Education
6. Finance

PROJECTION OF CURRENT TRENDS

Present projections indicate that Virginia will have a population of 6.6 million people in the year 2000. What does this 1.3 million increase over our current population mean to the judicial system? The goal of the task force for this subject will be to formulate both the population and economic trends for Virginia and to relate these expectations to the judicial workload. Questions to be answered include: What will the caseloads for each type of court be in the next century? Where geographically will these cases be heard? What types of cases will the courts be handling? What information systems will be needed to track and try these cases? How many people will be needed, both judicial and non-judicial, to process this workload? Can we develop models which will enable us to project our workload in the next century? The answers to these questions will identify the magnitude of the problem and will form the basis on which the other task forces will work.

SYSTEM STRUCTURE

One of the most difficult areas for this Commission will be that of system structure. The task force on this subject will need to explore the roots of the present judicial system and to ask that troublesome question: Is there a better way? Our present system is strong because our predecessors were willing to change when change was clearly indicated by different times and circumstances. By way of analogy, few of us today would select a doctor who practiced medicine according to the standards and procedures used twenty years ago. We all can foresee that drastic changes will occur and improvements will be made in the practice of medicine between 1986 and 2000. If we can see and accept the inevitability and need for change in that profession and even demand it, is it so difficult to appreciate that similar changes and improvements will be necessary and dictated in our own profession? The need for an examination of this area perhaps can also be demonstrated by briefly reviewing the past twenty years within the court system.

Since 1965, there have been enormous changes in the operation of the courts, including a major restructuring of the entire judicial system in 1973. As a result of these changes, the numerous trial courts and different courts of limited jurisdiction have been consolidated, the number of circuits reduced from 40 to 31, parttime and non-lawyer judges eliminated, a magistrate system established, an intermediate appellate court created, and many standardized procedures introduced. Dozens of other programs and administrative services also were developed or expanded. In addition, there have been major fundamental changes in the law, some of which were due to shifts in societal values. In 1965, many of the Supreme Court decisions which altered the course of the law and the administration of the courts (e.g., Miranda, Terry, Gault, Argersinger) were yet to come. Legal aid offices with fulltime staff were just being established. Dramatic increases in crime rates also were just beginning to make their effects felt by the courts.

As you can see, the past twenty years have brought monumental changes. Can we expect the next twenty years to be any different? The questions for consideration by the systems task force are complex and varied, but they must be asked. Should the magistrate system be abolished and a suitable alternative found? Should the use of substitute judges be abandoned? Should we create a statewide public defender system to provide defense services to the indigent? How should we deal with the growing area of administrative law? Should a system of administrative law judges replace our present hearing officers? Should the membership of the Court of Appeals be increased and the Court's jurisdiction expanded to include all civil cases? What is the best way to manage the judicial system? These are but a few of the areas which are fertile for debate and in need of direction.

To remain viable and strong, a judicial system must be flexible enough to change as the needs of society change. Furthermore, a truly outstanding system must be able to reflect the changes in society on a timely basis and not lag thirty years behind. The work of the Commission will allow us to speculate intelligently on the character of tomorrow's society and to visualize the type of judiciary necessary to be responsive.

PLANNING AND ADMINISTRATION

As I indicated earlier, planning is the backbone of our ability to minimize future problems and control our own destiny. Those with contrary views contend that planning is useless because the future is uncertain; therefore, we should just react to change, when it comes, in the best way we can. Yet, who among us would start to build a new house without a blueprint? If planning is necessary for an investment such as a new house, it seems clear that we should plan for the expenditure of nearly 95 million dollars of taxpayers' money per year. Additionally, it is only logical that the most successful management practices of business should also be used in government. I believe that Virginia is fortunate to have in place one of the most comprehensive and sophisticated judicial planning systems in this country. The work of the Commission on the Future of the Virginia Judicial System should propel our efforts to even greater heights. It will allow us to expand our horizons and to look at true long-range planning in addition to our short-term goals.

Planning promotes research and study. Research and study produce progress and improvement. Through planning, we seek to find ways to improve the judicial system. For example, a great concern to all citizens is the need to attract qualified lawyers to the bench. In response to this concern, the task force on planning and administration should study the question of judicial selection. While merit selection of judges is an ideal objective, the Commission should consider all systems used today for selecting judges and should feel free to recommend major changes in our present selection system. In addition, the Commission may want to consider whether some form of judicial evaluation would be beneficial.

Another major concern expressed by citizens is the delay in court proceedings caused by either excessive continuances or poor scheduling. Development of ways to improve calendar management should be a high priority of the task force on planning and administration. Likewise, careful deliberation should be given to whether Virginia should follow the lead of many other states and adopt time standards for case processing and whether alternatives to court adjudication should be pursued for certain types of cases. Mediation, arbitration, and other similar programs have been found successful elsewhere in limited cases such as domestic disputes and minor civil matters. We should study these concepts for possible application in Virginia. Other topics which merit detailed study include the concept of sentencing guidelines, judicial sentencing versus jury sentencing, victim-witness programs, implementation of the recently adopted jury management standards, and systematic ways to improve court facilities. Consideration of these and other issues constitute a formidable task, but their importance is such that we must not delay in beginning the job.

TECHNOLOGY

This year, we celebrated the fortieth anniversary of the computer. Look at what has been accomplished in that short period of time! Even more important, consider the accelerated pace by which technology has multiplied in recent years. All projections call for an expansion of that pace in the years ahead. Indeed, the most powerful computer in use today will be available on the office desk within five years. The strides expected in technology by the turn of the century are almost incomprehensible.

The rapidly changing nature of technology requires us to be dreamers as well as long-range planners. We must be willing to re-evaluate every custom, every procedure, in order to determine how technology can assist us.

Forty years ago, when I was trial justice, I jokingly told my clerks I would invent a machine that would take the spoken word and transmit it to the printed page. I told them that such an invention would ensure my financial independence and eliminate the need for secretarial help. While it was a joke then, it is my understanding that such a capability will likely be available commercially within five years. Such a machine now exists, but it has a vocabulary of only 1000 words. We are truly living in a technological revolution. Members of the judiciary must be willing to use the products of this revolution to further enhance court services.

EDUCATION

Education provides the knowledge, skill, and confidence to help us discharge our responsibilities. Education, however, is not an activity which can be permitted to start and stop, but instead is an exercise which must never cease. Those who are willing to join the exercise can remain vital, integral parts of their profession. Those who are unwilling are left behind; they stand to witness the dimunition of their contributions to society and their profession. The task force on education must conduct a critical review of our existing continuing legal education programs for both judicial and non-judicial personnel. Our present education programs contain most of the necessary ingredients, but we must look at ways to improve them. Should continuing legal education for judges be mandatory? Should judges be allowed educational sabbaticals? Should our pre-bench orientation program be expanded and made more intensive? Should the judicial education program be associated with one of the state law schools in order to take advantage of available expertise? Can community colleges be used to assist in training clerks and magistrates? Again, these questions only scratch the surface of education issues meriting review.

In a related matter, I would request the task force on education to deal with the topic of a public information program for the judiciary. The Judicial Council of Virginia has recently adopted Public Information Goals and Objectives for Virginia's Judiciary, calculated to address the problem of the public's understanding of the judicial system. The task force on education should translate these objectives into long-range programs. Specifically, the task force should decide whether to seek to have the present law-related education materials incorporated into the formal curricula of Virginia's schools, grades K - 12; how to expand the creation of docent programs for court visitations by schoolchildren; what audiovisual materials should be developed to explain the operation of the courts and the concepts of our Constitution; whether more bench, bar, media, and citizen's conferences should be conducted; what types of adult education programs should be initiated; and whether the court system should establish a public relations component.

As people better understand the courts, their confidence in the judicial process will be increased. As this confidence increases, so too will their acceptance of the courts' actions. Public understanding, confidence, and acceptance should produce a more orderly society and reduce divisions among people. Can we afford not to take all necessary steps to accomplish this end?

FINANCE

In 1973, when the Virginia courts were reorganized, a major shift in policy was achieved. For the most part, the courts became state-financed. Since that time, the General Assembly has been generally receptive to the financial needs of the judiciary. It will be necessary, however, for a task force to wrestle with the difficult problem of identifying the financial needs of the judicial system in the next century. By identifying these needs now, we can provide the General Assembly a better opportunity to develop means necessary to meet them, while maintaining the sound fiscal policies which have been traditional in Virginia.

The importance of providing adequate funding for operating the judicial system was emphasized by the results of the recent comprehensive planning survey. Those results demonstrate that attracting a qualified judiciary is the key factor in maintaining a strong judicial system and that adequate compensation is the single most important factor in accomplishing that goal. While recent General Assembly actions have been commendable, the task force must decide what the compensation needs of the judiciary will be in the future and how these needs can be satisfied so the Commonwealth can maintain a qualified judiciary. The task force on finance may want to consider whether the creation of a compensation commission is appropriate for Virginia and how best to insure that adequate compensation is available to all non-judicial personnel in the court system.

Other issues worthy of attention include whether the state should finance secretaries, law clerks, and office expenses for circuit court judges; whether financing of the circuit court clerks' offices should be the province of the judicial system rather than the Compensation Board; and whether the state should assume financing of equipment costs in the courts. In addition, on the revenue side, the task force should examine ways that courts can improve the collection of fines and costs. Even though the courts usually collect more money than they spend, millions of dollars remain uncollected each year. This situation should be improved. With the assistance of experienced and capable financial leaders, ways can be found to insure that the necessary resources are available to the courts without an unreasonable drain on state revenues.

In brief, this outlines some of the issues which could be addressed by the Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System. I know that some will question the need for such a study. Indeed, some may point to similar efforts and discredit the results. What is it, then, that we seek? Will we allow this to be simply another study to gather dust on the shelf when concluded? I sincerely hope not. What we seek is a forum for discussion of new ways to improve the operation of our court system in the future. What we will discuss is the method and manner of delivering justice.

As former Chief Justice Edward E. Pringle of Colorado has stated, "The all-embracing statute, the best-possible rule, the most soundly grounded line of decisional law—all lose their effect unless there be speedy and impartial treatment when the citizen looks to the courts for relief. Constitutional guarantees become meaningless where antiquated procedures exist, where delay is endemic, and the attempted dispensation of justice is but a sad response to the written mandates of fundamental documents from the Magna Carta on down. . . . Our problem is not our law, but how best to translate it into prompt resolution of disputes."

Speculation on the future is uncertain and difficult. It does not allow for the precision that those trained in the law desire. The difficulty of the task often dissuades the fainthearted. And yet, it is our professional responsibility to utilize our experience to build a bridge from the present to the future.

Oliver Wendell Holmes struck the keynote of what I expect from the Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System. He once said:

> Law is the business to which our lives are devoted, > and we should show less than devotion if we did not > do what in us lies to improve it, and, when we > perceive what seems to us the ideal of its future, > if we hesitate to point it out and to press toward > it with all our heart.

Judiciary's Year in Review

THE JUDICIARY'S YEAR IN REVIEW

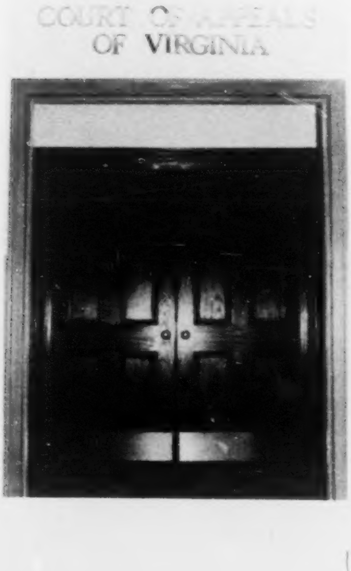
COMPREHENSIVE JUDICIAL PLANNING

1983-86 Comprehensive Judicial Plan: Evaluation and Accomplishments

Implementation of the 1983-86 Comprehensive Judicial Plan continued in 1985. By the year's end, 61 of the 69 tasks or 88 percent of the Plan had been undertaken and/or completed. Major accomplishments under the Judicial Council's Plan during the past three years have included:

- increasing appellate capacity in Virginia through the establishment of the Court of Appeals;
- securing salary increases totaling 19 percent for judges and court personnel;
- obtaining increased funding for continuing education opportunities for judges and judicial system personnel;
- completing a major study of the legal and operational problems existing between juvenile and domestic relations and circuit courts with regard to domestic relations matters;
- creating indigency guidelines to determine eligibility for court-appointed counsel at public expense;
- adopting standards for jury management;
- developing and publishing public information goals and objectives for use in all courts;
- implementing the Courts Automated Information System (CAIS) in 48 courts;
- revising the caseload reporting systems;
- implementing records retention legislation;
- creating additional technical assistance offices as well as an internal auditing capability within the court system.

Status reports on these and other actions stemming from the 1983-86 Plan have been provided regularly to judges, court system personnel, legislators and the public through the State of the Judiciary Report and the Judicial Council's Report to the General Assembly. The following report highlights further action taken with regard to the Plan in 1985.



Implementation Of The Court Of Appeals

Appellate capacity in Virginia increased during 1985 as a result of implementation of the Court of Appeals. The Court concluded its first full year of operation in January, 1986. A total of 1,641 filings were received and 850 cases were disposed during the year. The total number of petitions and cases filed with the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals increased 31 percent from the number in 1984. Total civil petitions filed increased by almost 37 percent while total criminal petitions filed rose by 28 percent. The two courts also acted on 13 percent more petitions and cases than the Supreme Court alone was able to do in 1984.

With the addition of the Court of Appeals, the likelihood of having a petition being accepted for a hearing increased. Cases involving domestic relations appeals and appeals from administrative agencies which previously were appealed to the Supreme Court only by petition now can be appealed as a matter of right to the Court of Appeals. In 1985, the Court of Appeals received 538 such appeals of right. In addition, of the 624 criminal petitions acted on by the Court of Appeals, 29 percent were granted a hearing. In contrast, only 5 percent of the criminal petitions acted on by the Supreme Court in 1984 (and 8 percent in 1985) were granted a hearing by the full court.

Early in the implementation of the Court of Appeals, automation designed to expedite the processing of the appellate caseload was introduced into the operation of the court. Personal computers were installed with comprehensive word processing capabilities (including a legal dictionary) to allow entry, modification, and redrafting of opinions. Through an electronic mail feature of the CAIS System, the judges are able to transfer opinions, modifications, and recommendations among themselves, the clerks, and court reporters. The judges are also able, by way of computer hook-up with computer-based legal research services, to retrieve citations, statutes, and other legal materials of precedential value in formulating opinions.

In order to provide convenient access to the Court of Appeals, regions were created within the Commonwealth. In 1985, there were three regions designated to hear cases. In 1986, the region that had previously served Richmond and Northern Virginia was divided into two regions in order to balance the caseload and relieve the backlog which had accumulated. Cases before the Court of Appeals are normally heard by 3-judge panels sitting in each of the regions. Membership on these panels rotates in order to promote homogeneity of appellate law and to prevent regionalization within the appellate court system.

Automation In The Courts

During 1985, 22 additional courts were added to the Courts Automated Information System (CAIS). General district courts receiving CAIS systems were Norfolk, (criminal, traffic, and civil), Chesapeake, Frederick, Winchester, Chesterfield, Richmond-Manchester, Fauquier, Loudoun, Washington, Tazewell, and Suffolk. The circuit courts implementing automated systems were Botetourt, Lynchburg, Frederick, Winchester, Richmond, Warren, Tazewell, Suffolk, and York. The addition of these courts brought the total number of courts with some form of automation to 62.

CAIS provides assistance to the clerks of court by streamlining procedures, expediting processing, and reducing the costs of judicial administration. Initiated in 1980, the system as originally conceived included four subsystems: Support Payments, Financial Management, Case Management, and Records Indexing.

The Support Payment System was designed to provide efficient control of court ordered support cases. Ten courts were on-line with this portion of the CAIS system as of December, 1985. The system accepted payments and issued checks to recipients while keeping track of changes in the support order and also of arrearages and noncompliance. With the transfer of support payment responsibility from the courts to the Division of Support Enforcement within the Department of Social Services, the implementation of the subsystem was suspended.

The Financial Management System is a general ledger accounting system which uses electronic cash register devices to perform cash receipting and to capture transaction data for subsequent processing. The collection of fines and costs, felony fees as well as restitutions and bonds is accomplished through the use of the cash register. Other non-cash transactions are recorded using a computer terminal. The clerk is thus able to generate standard financial reports such as trial balance and general ledger, exception reports, as well as reports designed to assist with monthly closing activities. As of the end of 1985, 25 district courts and 12 circuit courts were using the full Financial Management Subsystem. In addition, 9 juvenile and domestic relations courts, 29 general district courts, 1 combined court, and 17 circuit courts had implemented cash register receipting.

The Case Management Subsystem allows the electronic storage and retrieval of individual case records and assists the clerks in administration and clerical activities such as indexing, docketing, and statistical reporting. The subsystem provides easy access to case information in order to meet requests from defendants, attorneys, police officers, and others. Transfer of information to the Division of Motor Vehicles, the State Police, the Department of Corrections, as well as local police and sheriff's departments is also made more efficient. The Case Management Subsystem is currently being used in 14 general district courts as well as 3 circuit courts.

The Records Indexing Subsystem will provide assistance to the circuit courts in the filing and indexing of all legal instruments mandated by the Virginia Code, including local records, judgments, charters, fictitious names, marriage licenses, wills, etc. This will allow easier access to records indexing information by court personnel as well as by title examiners, attorneys, and the general public.

Establishment Of Internal Auditing

On July 1, 1985 the Office of the Executive Secretary, Supreme Court of Virginia, established within the Technical Assistance Department the internal audit section. An internal audit supervisor and a staff of three regional internal auditors were recruited, and received audit training and an orientation of the Virginia Court System.

The objective of internal auditing is to assist members of the judicial system in the effective discharge of their responsibilities. To this end, internal auditing furnishes them with analyses, appraisals, recommendations, and information concerning the accounting and administrative activities reviewed. The audit objective includes promoting effective control at reasonable cost.

The scope of internal auditing encompasses the examination and evaluation of financial transactions within the courts and compliance with established procedures as prescribed in the Virginia District Court Accounting Manual and District Court Manual.

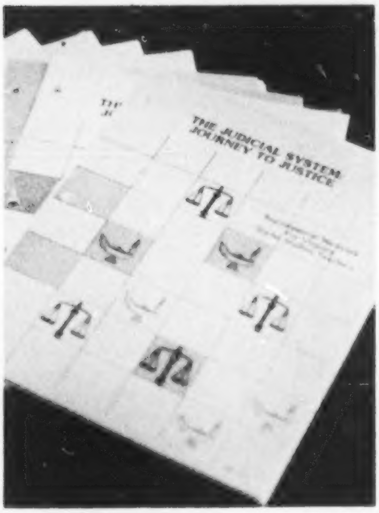
On October 15, 1985 court monitorings and court audits were initiated. The internal auditors visited over 117 courts. In addition to court monitorings, many projects assisting district courts in the areas of bank reconciliations, manual and electronic bookkeeping and Financial Management System Certifications were completed.

Continuing Education Opportunities For Judges And Court System Personnel

This was the first full year for the financially rejuvenated continuing judicial education program in Virginia. Forty-two judges were able to attend national-level courses: seven of the newly appointed Court of Appeals judges, 12 Circuit Court judges, 10 General District Court judges and 13 Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court judges benefited from this national-level judicial education.

Due to the establishment of the new Court of Appeals, there was a larger than normal number of new judges to be trained in 1985; a total of 43 - 17 Circuit, 21 General District and 5 Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court judges. The Pre-bench Orientation Program was improved by an in-depth review of each new judge's full mock trial videotape by an experienced judge. This one-on-one critique proved educational to both the new and critiquing judge.

Fifty-six magistrates completed the Magistrate Certification Program in 1985. Individual one-on-one critiquing of new magistrates videotapes was used by the Magistrate Technical Assistant in depicting a "Perfect Hearing," to be emulated by new magistrates. In December, the Committee on District Courts enacted a new policy calling for more stringent training of new magistrates prior to their attending the Magistrate Certification course and for mandatory continuing education in legal issues for all magistrates. Every magistrate will be required to obtain six continuing legal education credits (CLE's) every year by attending at least one state-wide conference and other approved educational opportunities. Merit pay increases and re-appointment will depend upon meeting these requirements which take effect on July 1, 1986. Another change in the magistrate conference program was the use of multiple training courses, repetitively given, to permit each magistrate to choose those courses of most interest to him or her. It permitted smaller numbers in each class session and much higher levels of participation by the individual magistrates. There was also greater input from the magistrates prior to the conference in regard to subject areas to be covered in the sessions they planned to attend.



The first Hearing Officer Conference was held in November in Charlottesville, attended by 83 Hearing Officers. Courses were conducted in the areas of Special Education and Commerce and the Health Regulatory Boards. Introductory sessions were also given to explain how the newly consolidated Hearing Officer List would work under Supreme Court administration. A second, parallel program will be held in June of 1986 for those Hearing Officers unable to attend the November Conference.

Law Related Education (LRE) continued in 1985 with the mailing of the LRE supplementary materials to all Virginia schools, city and county school superintendents, and school boards.

1986-1988 Comprehensive Judicial Plan

The Judicial Administration Committees of the Judicial Council and the Judicial Conferences worked in 1985 to develop and adopt a new Plan for the court system during the 1986-88 biennium. To do so, the Committees met and reviewed the results of the 1984 issue survey and identified 14 major issues to be addressed in the development of the 1986-88 Comprehensive Judicial Plan. This marked the first time that members of the three committees had joined to discuss system-wide issues of concern to the judicial system. The Committees met throughout the fall to develop recommendations to present to the full Judicial Council. The Council reviewed these recommendations and, by December, had adopted the 1986-88 Comprehensive Judicial Plan. An executive summary of the new Plan will be published and distributed in mid-1986.

OTHER JUDICIAL SYSTEM ACTIVITIES DURING 1985

Creation Of New Judgeships

The General Assembly, in 1985, created one additional circuit court judgeship, in the Second Judicial Circuit, raising the number of authorized judgeships in the Second from seven to eight. Additional judgeships were also created in the Fourth, Eighth, and Thirteenth General District Courts. Both population and circuit court caseloads had experienced substantial growth in the Second, creating the need for an eighth judgeship. Likewise, judgeships in the Fourth, Eighth, and Thirteenth General District Courts were created to deal with increases in caseloads in those districts.

The 1986 General Assembly created new judgeships, which become effective July 1, 1986, in the Thirty-First Circuit Court as well as the Thirty-First General District Court, the Second District Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, and the Fifteenth Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court. The Thirty-First Circuit and District has experienced rapid population growth and higher than average court workloads. Both the Second District and the Fifteenth District have had significant increases in juvenile populations and, concomitantly, increases in juvenile and domestic relations caseload. Both juvenile caseload and domestic relations caseload have increased in the Second District while the Fifteenth has experienced an increase in domestic relations cases but decreases in juvenile cases.

Thus, as a result of these additional judgeships, there will be 122 circuit court judges, 103 general district court judges, and 71 juvenile and domestic relations court judges authorized for Virginia's courts as of July, 1, 1986.

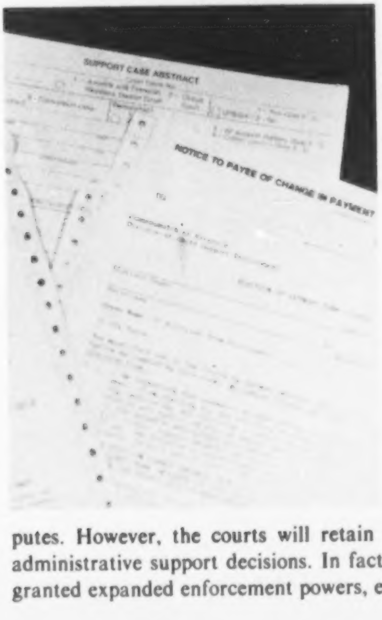
The General Assembly also approved the realignment of the Twenty-Ninth and Twenty-Seventh Judicial Circuits and Districts effective July 1, 1986. In order to create more balanced caseloads among the courts, the counties of Bland and Giles were transferred from the Twenty-Ninth Circuit and District to the Twenty-Seventh Circuit and District.

The Judicial Council is charged with the responsibility of studying the need for additional circuit court judgeships. Likewise, the Council has the duty of reviewing the desirability and feasibility of requests to alter the boundaries of any judicial circuit. In order to carry out these tasks, the Council reviews descriptive statistical evaluations of the judicial workload and personal interviews with the judges, clerks, Commonwealth's attorneys, members of the bar, and other individuals with knowledge of the courts within the circuit under study. After its review, the Council makes its recommendation to the General Assembly which can either create or fail to create additional judgeships.

In a similar manner, the committee on District Courts reviews requests for additional judgeships for the general district and juvenile and domestic relations district courts.

Changes In Support Enforcement

Legislation removing the processing of child and spousal support payments in the juvenile court clerk's office was enacted by the General Assembly in 1985. The new law was designed to implement in Virginia the federal Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984, P.L. 98-378. Under the new provisions, the Division of Support Enforcement of the Department of Social Services was given responsibility of establishing support obligations, monitoring and collecting support payments, and initiating enforcement action in cases of arrearage. The agency, after notice and a due process hearing, may establish the respondent's support obligation and the amount to be paid pursuant to a formula. This formula would be binding in all administrative support proceedings, even if none of the parties is a welfare recipient, but would not be binding on appeal to a court since Va. Code § 20-108.1 (effective July 1, 1986) restricts the use of a formula in court to being used as a general guideline only, without creating any presumptions. Such orders would be enforceable by administrative equivalents of garnishments, payroll deduction orders, and other similar remedies. It is anticipated that the use of administrative process will result in fewer support matters being tried in court.



SUPPORT CASE ABSTRACT

NOTICE TO PAYEE OF CHANGE IN PAYMENT

The effect of legislation will be to re-establish the role of the courts as neutral arbitrators of disputes. However, the courts will retain power to try support cases and to hear appeals of administrative support decisions. In fact, juvenile and domestic relations district courts were granted expanded enforcement powers, equaling those of circuit courts, for dealing with violations of support orders. The administrative process will thus provide an alternative (not a replacement forum) for establishing and enforcing support obligations. The courts will be relieved of the duties of processing and monitoring support payment and on their own motion of initiating enforcement action when arrearages occur.

It is also projected that the transfer of the collection of support payments from the courts to the Division of Support Enforcement will result eventually in reduced workloads for clerk's offices. As a result, the number of positions in the J&DR Courts budget was reduced by nine. Throughout 1985, juvenile and domestic relations court personnel worked with the Division of Support Enforcement and Supreme Court staff to provide an orderly transfer of processing responsibility for support cases.

Permanency Planning Conference

On March 24-26, 1985 Virginia held a statewide conference on permanency planning for Virginia's children with approximately 100 judges, legislators and citizens from throughout the state present. Virginia thus became the first state to sponsor such an event following the Launch Conference sponsored by the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges.

The conference discussion focused on the subject of "Foster Care Drift". Keynote speakers for the event were Chief Justice Carrico and Dr. Robert W. ten Bensel, M.D. of the School of Public Health at the University of Minnesota. Dr. ten Bensel's research has indicated that if a child remains in foster care as long as 18 months, it becomes likely that he/she will remain in foster care for the rest of his/her minority and that there would be an average of three to four placements during that time. This runs counter to the accepted notion that children need stability and continuity of relationships in order to grow normally. Research has also shown that minority, older, and multihandicapped children are less likely to be placed in permanent homes than other children.

The Virginia Conference also held discussions on the legal and practical problems concerning the termination of parental rights and the permanency planning-related, responsibilities of court-appointed guardians ad litem. Specific items discussed were objections of children involved, the participation of foster parents in trials, and the circumstances under which the court should consider overruling the Department of Social Services regarding placement.

As a result of the conference, the Department of Social Services reports that the number of children in placement has been reduced, more judges are actively monitoring those who are in placement, and a number of programs aimed at preventing the need for foster care placements have been funded.

In August, 1985, Chief Justice Carrico was notified by the Commissioner of the Department of Social Services that Virginia had achieved an overall 80 percent level of compliance with Public Law 96-272 based on the federal audit for fiscal year 1984. This meant that an additional $2,586,233 was available for purposes such as preventing foster care placements, reunifying families and further reducing the number of children in foster care.

Virginia was one of the first states in the nation to recognize the need for permanency planning. With the goals of reducing the number of children in foster care and preventing the unnecessary separation of children from their families, the Commonwealth enacted legislation in 1977 mandating such planning. The legislation emphasized that a child should be separated from his/her parents, guardian, legal custodian, or other person standing in loco parentis only when the child's welfare is endangered or it is in the interest of public safety. The law required that the juvenile court conduct periodic hearings and reviews of the status of all foster care children and the steps being taken to find a permanent home for them. Provisions for permanent foster care placements as alternatives to temporary foster care and to adoption were also included in the law.

While the passage of this law achieved some reform and the number of children living in foster care was reduced, there were still more than 6,000 Virginia children living apart from their parents in foster care in 1984. Audits conducted by the federal government following the passage of P.L. 96-272 (Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act) had shown Virginia to be "out of compliance" with a portion of the Act (section 427) in fiscal years 1982 and 1983. This was due to the fact that timely dispositional hearing requirements were not met in some cases and administrative review requirements were not met in others.

The Permanent Families for Virginia Children Task Force was appointed in July 1984 as a direct result of the Permanent Families project sponsored by the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges. The Honorable Harry L. Carrico, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Virginia, served as chairman of the panel. In addition to the Chief Justice and Virginia's lead judge, John H. Thomas (appointed by the National Council of Juvenile & Family Court Judges), members of the task force included two legislators, three judges, a representative of the state Department of Social Services and two citizens representing private, non-profit agencies. The basic charge for the task force was to determine specific areas where permanency planning training was needed, to develop the curriculum, and sponsor a statewide training conference.

District Court Personnel System

During 1985 both the District Court and Magistrate systems faced growing workloads through increased caseloads and responsibilities. In 1985, district courts began retention of all their records for ten years, tax set-off provisions were implemented, and new procedures and guidelines for indigent defense were begun. Of major impact to the juvenile and domestic relations district courts was the transfer of the collection of support payments function to the Division of Support Enforcement. The transition process will continue during 1986 and brings with it several administrative hurdles to overcome. In anticipation of a reduced workload in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts as a result of this transfer, the budget was reduced by nine positions. With growth in the workloads and continuing budget conservatism, the Courts have implemented automated systems which have been instrumental in making the workload more manageable and increasing the productivity of each court employee.

Automation is also improving the availability of personnel information. With the implementation of the Personnel Employment Payroll Leave System (PEPALS), a complete automated record is now available for each employee. Personnel information, such as address, is confidential and protected while public information is easily accessible. Salary and leave information can be provided to each employee and the supervisor. In addition, the preparation of management reports is simplified. A position control function, which accounts for positions by each court and magistrate office, will maintain information about whether a position has been budgeted by the General Assembly, whether it has been authorized to be established and filled by the Committee on District Courts, and the employee who fills the position. An individual may not be employed unless a position has been budgeted and authorized by the Committee on District Courts. As a part of this process, new personnel/payroll and leave reporting forms have been developed.

The compensation policies of the courts were affected by the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). Positions which are generally considered to be exempt and non-exempt were identified and overtime payment and compensatory leave policies were developed. Training sessions were held during the Fall Conferences to describe how these provisions affect the courts as well as to train personnel in the record-keeping requirements.

Of major significance for the District Court System is the Personnel Study to be conducted during 1986. The study will address the job evaluation and compensation plan as well as the need for the court administrator position and the management environment in which, if adopted, it would operate. The study will also develop a recruitment and selection system for the courts with specific, validated, job-related qualifications for positions as well as the tools which judges and clerks can use to determine to what extent applicants meet these qualifications. Finally, it will address a method which will be used to determine staffing levels among the district courts. A system using both quantitative and qualitative measures, which would include performance standards, will be developed.

Increase In Fees For Court Appointed Counsel

The 1986 General Assembly enacted legislation providing for a 15 percent increase in the maximum fees that can be paid to court-appointed counsel. Thus, the maximum fee allowed for counsel in defending a felony charge punishable by confinement in the penitentiary for more than 20 years was increased from $400 to $460. The fee to defend other felonies was raised from $200 to $230, while that for misdemeanors in circuit court was increased from $100 to $115. In district court cases, the maximum fee for court appointed counsel was raised from $75 to $86. In capital cases, the courts have the discretion to determine the appropriate fee to be paid to court-appointed counsel.

In Virginia, indigent services are provided primarily through court-appointed counsel. Compensation for such counsel is paid out of the Criminal Fund. The 1986 General Assembly received a report concerning Virginia's Public Defender Program and Court Appointed Counsel Systems, pointing out that Virginia had one of the lowest fee schedule in the nation for compensatory court-appointed counsel. The report indicated that the State Bar and individual members of the Bar and were becoming concerned by the increasing reluctance of attorneys in private practice to accept appointments as court appointed counsel. This reluctance was due to the low fee schedules which had not changed in fifteen years. There was concern that as the number of attorneys willing to accept indigent cases dwindles, the quality of representation suffers. Thus, the ability of the Commonwealth to meet the Constitutional obligation to provide counsel to indigent criminal defendants was being questioned.

FISCAL RESOURCES ANALYSIS

The General Assembly appropriated $166,966,697 to support the operation of Virginia's judicial system during the 1984-1986 biennium. The following illustration reflects the distribution of the appropriation with the corresponding expenditure.

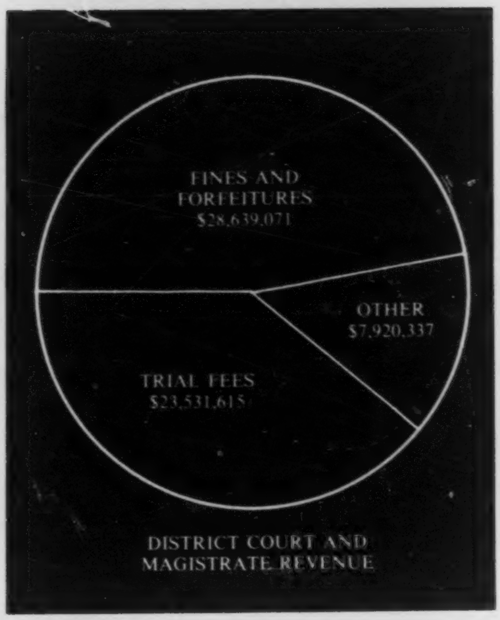
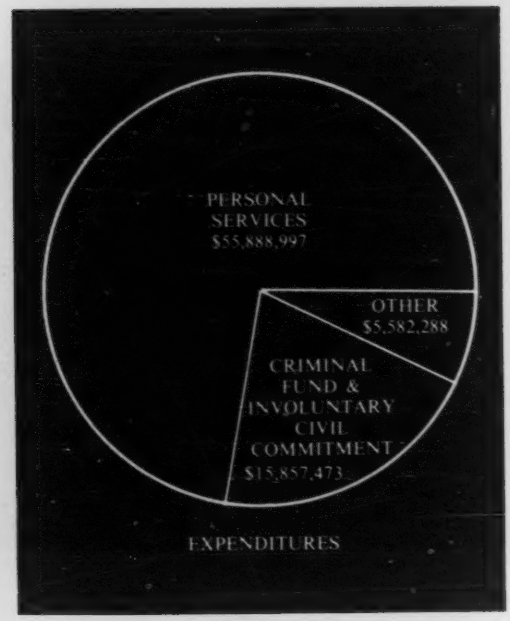
REVENUES

Revenue from the District Court and Magistrate Systems are either deposited to the credit of the Commonwealth or forwarded to local treasurers for use by the locality. The revenue recipient is determined by statutory provision. In FY85, revenues collected for the Commonwealth increased by 10.8 percent, and reached $45,028,707. Local revenues increased by 7.5 percent to $15,062,316. Since expenditures totaled $52,385,775, the state collected $1.15 for every dollar spent on the two systems.



DISTRICT COURT AND MAGISTRATE REVENUE



EXPENDITURES

EXPENDITURES

Expenditures for the Judiciary during FY85 totaled $77,328,758 — An eleven percent increase over FY84. The majority (72 percent) of these expenses were for personal services (salaries, wages, substitute judges, and fringe benefits) and 21 percent represented compensation to court appointed attorneys, other related court costs (Criminal Fund), and for involuntary civil commitments.

INDIGENT DEFENSE SERVICES

From FY 84 to FY 85, the cost of the Commonwealth of providing counsel for indigents charged with a criminal offense fell 4.5%, from almost $8.3 million in FY 84 to $7.9 million in FY 85. The cost of operation of the Public Defender Commission rose from $728,990 in FY 84 to $819,022 in FY 85, an increase of over 12% while court appointed counsel costs declined from $7.5 million to just over $7 million. Although less was expended for court appointed counsel fees, a higher percentage of these expenditures was recouped by the courts in FY 85 (12.6%) than in FY 84 (11.1%). Court appointed counsel was provided for 88,920 charges (64,395 individuals), yielding an average cost of $79.64 per charge.

INVOLUNTARY CIVIL COMMITMENTS

Over the past six years, costs for maintaining the involuntary commitment process rose from $1,312,881 in FY 79 to $3,922,612 during the last fiscal year. Fiscal year 1985 expenditures increased 9 percent over the previous year's figure of $3,588,652.

Of the almost $4 million expended in FY 85, $2.2 million, or 57 percent, went towards payment of hospital costs. These costs included charges for room and meals, medication, lab tests and pharmaceutical supplies. The next largest sum of reimbursements, 18 percent of the total, was made to physicians and psychiatrists. Payments made to attorneys representing persons alleged to be mentally ill accounted for 13 percent or $514,903 of the total expenditure. The only area in which costs declined in 1985 was in payments to interpreters and witnesses.

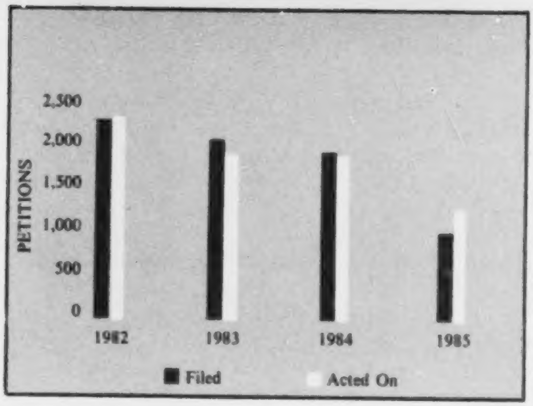
VIRGINIA COURTS

THE SUPREME COURT

The Supreme Court of Virginia concluded 206 years of existence in 1985. The Court is one of the oldest continuously operating judicial bodies in the United States. It was founded in Williamsburg on August 30, 1779.

SUPREME COURT PETITIONS FILED AND ACTED ON 1982-1985



The seven justices of the Supreme Court meet the first Monday in October and thereafter every seventh Monday until completion of the June docket. A regular session lasts five weekdays with a short session of three days being held in late August or early September.

The Supreme Court is responsible for the overall supervision of the entire Virginia Judicial System. Even though the administrative demands on the Supreme Court of Virginia continue to increase, the Court's primary mission remains that of reviewing decisions of lower courts in which appeals have been allowed. These decisions fall into two basic categories:

1. Decisions of lower courts in which questions of proper application of statutory or common law are raised, and
2. Decisions of lower courts based on the question of constitutionality.

The Supreme Court of Virginia is the court of last resort in the Commonwealth's judicial system. Its original jurisdiction lies in cases of habeas corpus, mandamus and prohibition, and in matters of judicial censure, retirement and removal (Article VI, §10, Virginia Code §§17-96 and 17-98; and Rule 5:5). All other jurisdiction is appellate (Article VI, §11). The Court has jurisdiction to hear all appeals, both civil (Virginia Code §8.01-670) and criminal (Virginia Code §19.2-317) from the circuit courts and appeals from the State Corporation Commission (Virginia Code §12.1-39). Written Opinions are required.

The Virginia Constitution provides that no decision shall be come the judgment of the Supreme Court except on the concurrence of at least three justices, and that no law shall be declared unconstitutional under either the Constitution of Virginia or the Constitution of the United States unless a majority of the justices concur (Virginia Constitution, Article VI, §2 and Virginia Code §17-94.)

Justices are selected from the state at large. All seven justices have offices in the Supreme Court Building. The justices who reside elsewhere in the state also have offices in their local communities.

In addition to its appellate functions of examining results reached in lower courts and of redefining and developing the body of State law, the Supreme Court is also responsible for general supervision of the entire Virginia Judicial System. The Supreme Court is also authorized to make rules of procedure and practice and to advise concerning changes in the organization of the lower courts.

With the first full year of operation of the Court of Appeals, significant changes occurred in the caseload of the Supreme Court. In 1985, 872 fewer petitions were filed with the Court than in 1984, a decrease of 45.5 percent. However, the appellate capacity of the court system as a whole increased. The number of petitions filed with the Supreme Court combined with those filed with the Court of Appeals was 31.1 percent greater than the number filed in 1984. Total civil filings increased 36.9 percent while total criminal petitions increased by 28.1 percent.

The Supreme Court acted on a smaller number of appellate petitions in 1985 than in 1984. The Court also granted fewer appellate petitions in 1985. However, the percentage of appellate petitions granted was 21.9 percent, the highest percentage in the last 10 years. The percentage of civil petitions granted remained at the same level as in 1984 (31.3%) while the percentage of criminal petitions granted increased from 5.4 percent in 1984 to 8 percent in 1985.

Original jurisdiction petitions filed with the Supreme Court increased by 15.9 percent in 1985. Of the 326 original jurisdiction petitions acted upon by the Supreme Court, 12.9 percent were awarded. This was an increase from the 12.3 percent awarded in 1984 and represented the highest percentage awarded in the last 10 years.

The number of petitions withdrawn fell from 109 in 1984 to 54 in 1985, a decrease of 50.5 percent. In 1985, 5.1 percent of the petitions filed were withdrawn before being acted upon. This was a decrease from 1984 when 5.7 percent of the petitions filed were withdrawn.

As of the end of 1985, there were 281 cases left to be argued before the Supreme Court. This represented the largest backlog of cases in the last 10 years. At the beginning of 1985, there were 891 petitions pending before the Supreme Court; 390 civil, 330 criminal, 151 original jurisdiction, and 20 habeas corpus appeals. As of the end of the year, there were only 476 petitions pending, a decrease of 415 petitions from the previous year. The number of civil petitions pending had fallen to 257, the number of criminal petitions had decreased to 58, the number of original jurisdiction petitions had declined to 144, and the number of habeas appeals had decreased to 17.

The number of cases decided by opinion declined slightly from 176 in 1984 to 174 in 1985. Opinions in which judgment of the lower court was reversed decreased both in number (from 94 in 1984 to 87 in 1985) and as a percentage of cases decided by opinion (from 53.4.% in 1984 to 50% in 1985). Cases decided by orders decreased significantly from 126 in 1984 to 38 in 1985.

Of the 89 appeals from the Court of Appeals, the Supreme Court acted on 32. Two civil and 29 criminal petitions were refused while only one civil appeal from the Court of Appeals was granted a hearing.

THE COURT OF APPEALS

The Court of Appeals in empowered to hear appeals from the Industrial Commission of Virginia, appeals of circuit court decisions regarding appeals from an administrative agency, appeals of any final judgment, order, or decree of a circuit court involving divorce, custody, spousal or child support, adoption, control or disposition of a child, as well as any other domestic relations matter. The Court of Appeals can also hear appeals of convictions in criminal and traffic matters except where a sentence of death has been imposed.

In the first full year of operation, 1,641 petitions were filed with the Court of Appeals. This included 1,085 criminal petitions, 538 appeals of right (259 domestic relations appeals, 91 appeals from administrative agencies, 63 habeas appeals), and 18 original jurisdiction petitions. The Court acted on 624 criminal petitions, granting 183 and refusing 441. Thus, the Court granted 29.3 percent of the criminal petitions it acted on in 1985. By contrast, the Supreme Court granted only 5.4 percent of criminal petitions on 1984 and 8 percent in 1985.

The Court of Appeals disposed of 13 original jurisdiction petitons and 216 cases involving appeals of right and 10 criminal appeals that had previously been granted a hearing. At the end of 1985, the Court had 563 criminal petitions pending as well as 7 original jurisdiction cases, 365 appeals of right, and 178 granted criminal appeals remaining on the docket.

Ten criminal cases and 79 civil cases which had been considered by the Court of Appeals were subsequently appealed to the Supreme Court of Virginia.

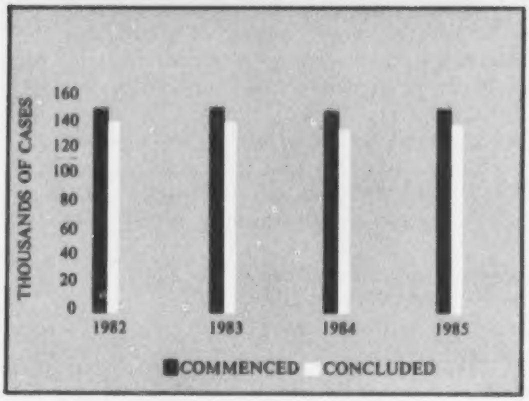
THE CIRCUIT COURTS

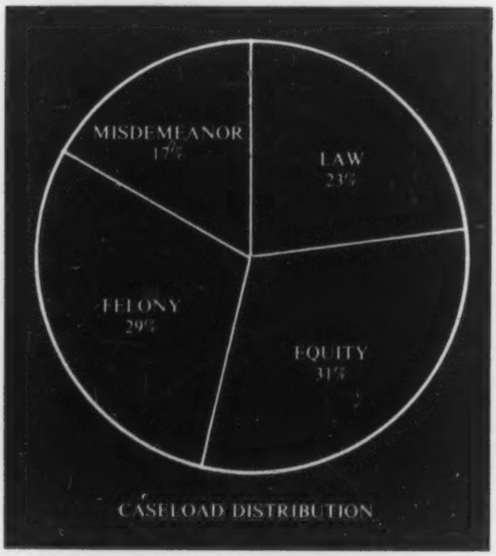
The Circuit Court is the only court with general jurisdiction in the Commonwealth of Virginia. During 1985, 121 judges, 122 locally elected clerks and approximately 725 support staff served the thirty-one circuits.

CIRCUIT COURT CASELOAD
CASES COMMENCED AND CONCLUDED



This court has concurrent jurisdiction with the general district court in civil cases involving claims between $1,000 and $7,000 with the exception of attachments in which the claim must exceed $7,000. Circuit courts have exclusive jurisdiction over all equity matters such as adoptions, divorces, and land title disputes.

Circuit courts have jurisdiction of proceedings by quo warranto and to issue writs of mandamus, prohibition, and certiorari to all tribunals. They must also issue writs of mandamus in all matters or proceedings arising from or pertaining to the actions of the board of supervisors or other local governing bodies. The appellate jurisdiction extends to all cases, civil and criminal, in which appeal may, as provided by law, be taken from the judgment of any inferior tribunal.



In an effort to improve the overall credibility of information collected, a revised caseload reporting system was implemented in the Circuit Courts on January 1, 1984. In addition to reducing the subjective areas of case counting, the revised scheme expanded jury trial data to include the actual number of juries impaneled and sworn; captured the number of defendants involved in criminal cases and provided a mechanism to track each court's inventory of pending cases. When comparing 1984 and 1985 data to previous years', caution should be exercised in that changes may be the result of the revised reporting procedures and not necessarily an indication of actual caseload increases or decreases.

In 1985, 147,191 new cases were commenced in Virginia's circuit courts, an increase of 0.5 percent over the number commenced in 1984. Of the 31 circuits, the Ninteenth reported the most new cases (14,555) while the Sixth reported the least number of cases (2,035). The

* Manual Recount

 Implementation of the Revised Caseload Reporting System average caseload of the 31 circuits was 4,748 commenced cases. In 1984, the average caseload per circuit was 4,723 new cases.

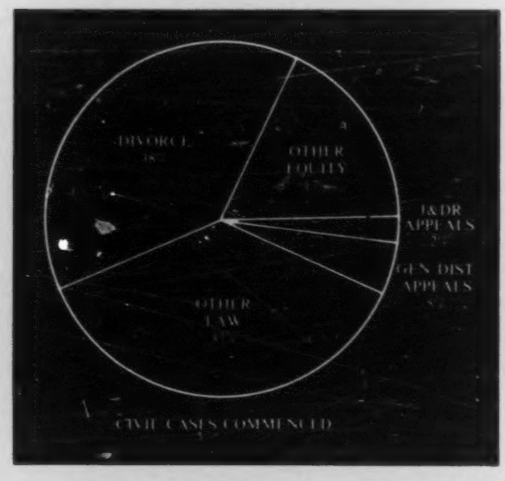
While the total number of new cases increased, the average caseload per judge declined slightly in 1985 (1,216 commenced cases per judge) to the lowest level since 1979. This was the result of an additional judgeship being added in the Second District Circuit. In urban circuits, the average caseload per judge was 1,269 commenced cases while in the rural circuits the average caseload was 1,146 cases.

There were 137,591 cases concluded by the circuit courts in 1985. Thus, the 121 circuit court judges heard an average of 1,137 cases each. This was below the 1984 measure of 1,146 concluded cases each. Judges in urban circuits concluded an average of 1,187 cases in 1985 while judges in rural circuits concluded an average of 1,070 cases.

The number of cases pending increased statewide in 1985 to 137,737. This was a 7.3 increase from the number of pending cases in 1984. As has been the case since 1966, the number of commenced cases exceeded the number of cases concluded. This was true for law cases, equity cases, felony cases, and misdemeanor cases. At the end of 1985, there were 46,622 law cases, 63,089 equity cases, 19,043 felony cases and 8,983 misdemeanor cases pending in Virginia's circuit courts. The average number of pending cases per judge was 1,138 cases. The pending caseload per judge was highest in the Third Circuit (2,299 cases pending per judge) and the lowest in the Twenty-Second Circuit (605 cases per judge).

CIVIL

Almost 80,000 civil cases were commenced in 1985 in the circuit courts. This included 30,316 divorce cases, 29,817 law cases, 13,942 equity cases, and 5,583 appeals from the General District and Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts. Of the 79,678 civil cases commenced, almost 96 percent were initial filings while about four percent were reinstatements, cases remanded from the appellate courts, cases whose verdicts were set aside by the trial judge or cases resulting in mistrials.



The Nineteenth Circuit reported the most civil cases commenced (10,001) among the 31 circuits. However, the average civil caseload per judge was the highest in the Thirty-First Circuit (978 civil cases per judge). By contrast, the Fifth Circuit averaged the fewest (469) while the statewide average was 658 civil cases per judge.

Virginia's circuit courts concluded 72,936 civil cases last year, down slightly from 1984. Of these cases, 28 percent were concluded by settlement, non-suit or voluntary dismissal, 19 percent ended by a decree on deposition, 16 percent by report of commissioner, and 3 percent by default judgment. Only 2 percent of the cases were concluded by a jury trial while 14.4 percent ended by a trial by judge. Almost 10 percent were purged under the 2 and 5 year rules and another 8 percent were concluded by other means.

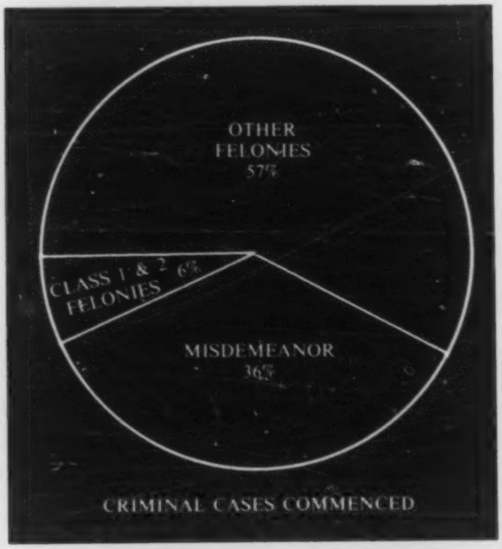
Almost two-thirds of the cases concluded in 1985 ended within one year of initial filing.

Over 80 percent were concluded within 2 years of filing. Almost 70 percent of the divorce cases terminated within one year while 83.3 percent of the juvenile and domestic relations appeals were concluded within that time frame.

CRIMINAL

The criminal caseload in the circuit courts increased slightly (less than 1 percent) from 1984 and 1985. There were 67,513 criminal cases initiated of which 64 percent were felonies and 36 percent involved misdemeanors. Over half (57.1%) were commenced by indictment, presentment, information or waiver. Almost one third (32.1%) were appeals from the general district and juvenile and domestic relations courts while nearly 11 percent were cases reinstated, remanded from an appellate court, verdicts set aside, or cases resulting in a mistrial.

The Fourth Circuit reported the largest number of criminal cases (7,222) in 1985 although the Twenty-Fifth Circuit had the highest per judge average (864 criminal cases per judge) among the 31 circuits. The statewide average was 558 criminal cases per judge. The 1985 average is almost identical to that in 1984 when the circuit court judges averaged 557 cases each.



There was a slight increase in the number of criminal cases concluded. Of the 64,655 cases concluded, about 46 percent resulted in a guilty plea prior to trial while 16 percent were nolle prossed and another 3 percent were withdrawn prior to trial. Only 5.8 percent were concluded by a jury trial while almost a fourth were ended by a trial by judge.

While only 29 percent of the criminal cases concluded in 1985 terminated within 30 days of filing, 82.6 percent were ended within 5 months. Almost 90 percent of the misdemeanors cases were concluded within this time frame while 76 percent of class 1 and 2 felony cases and 80 percent of cases involving felonies were ended within 5 months.

The circuit courts reported that 37,231 defendants were involved in new criminal cases in 1985. The number of defendants includes individuals involved in cases filed as appeals or stemming from indictments, presentments, informations, or waiver. The average number of charges per felony defendant was 2.02 charges while misdemeanor defendants averaged 1.39 charges each in 1985.

JURY TRIALS

The circuit courts concluded 1,476 civil cases and 3,781 criminal cases by jury trial in 1985. There were 1,722 juries impaneled and sworn in civil cases and 2,437 juries impaneled and sworn in criminal cases. The number of law and felony cases included by a trial by jury decreased in 1985 while the number of misdemeanor cases ended by a jury trial increased. There were 7.3 felony jury trials for every 100 felony cases concluded, 4.9 law jury trials for every 100 law cases and 3.3 misdemeanor jury trials for every 100 misdemeanor cases that reached conclusion in 1985.

The judges in the circuit courts preside over an average of 34 jury trials in 1985. This was a decline from the statewide average of 37 in 1984. The judges in the Third Circuit had an average of 62 jury trials each while the judges in the Eighth Circuit presided over just 13 each. The number of days spent in jury trials declined from 5,533 in 1984 to 5,035 in 1985. Criminal cases accounted for 53 percent of the total number of days spent in jury trials. Law cases averaged 1.36 jury days per jury impaneled while felony cases averaged 1.18 days per jury impaneled. Misdemeanor cases used an average of just 0.78 jury days per jury impaneled.

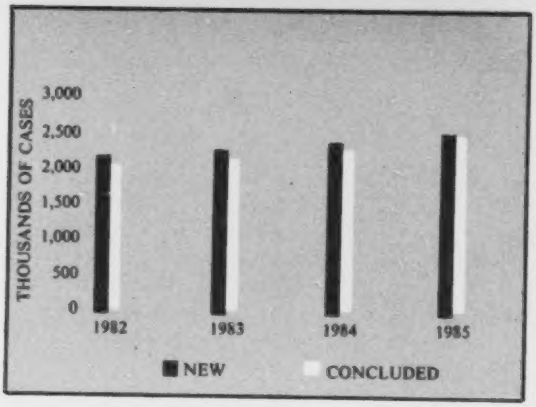
THE DISTRICT COURTS

The Virginia District Court System is composed of 204 courts classified as either general district, juvenile and domestic relations, or combined. During 1985, 172 judges served in the Commonwealth's judicial districts and supported by 921 persons working in clerks' offices.

General district court cases are categorized as civil, criminal or traffic. The court's civil jurisdiction extends to suits involving amounts of money up to $7,000. Cases in which a person is charged with a misdemeanor are decided in this court; however, only preliminary hearings are held for felony cases. Jurisdiction extends also to all cases in which an adult is charged with a traffic offense.

DISTRICT COURT CASELOAD
NEW CASES AND CASES CONCLUDED



Juvenile and domestic relations district courts have exclusive original jurisdiction over all matters and proceedings involving delinquents; juveniles accused of traffic violations; children in need of services; children who have been subjected to abuse or neglect; adults accused of child abuse or of offenses against members of their own family; adults involved in disputes concerning support, visitation or custody of a child; abandonment of children; foster care and entrustment agreements; court-ordered rehabilitation services; and court consent for certain medical treatments.

In 1985, 2,542,806 new cases were initiated in Virginia's district courts, an increase of almost six percent from 1984. Most (91%) o these cases were initiated in the General District Courts where the average caseload per judge was 22,484 cases. The judges in the juvenile and domestic relations couts handled 232,595 new cases, an average of 3,359 new cases.

The courts reported a 6.2 percent drop in the number of hearings held during 1985. This was due in large part to changes in the way civil hearings were reported. The number of hearings in matters other than civil increased in 1985. The judges in the General District Courts averaged 22,030 hearings each while juvenile and domestic relations judges held an average of 6,100 hearings. In juvenile and domestic relations matters, there was an average of 1.82 hearings per case while in general district court an average of 0.98 hearings were held for each new case.

Almost 2.5 million cases were concluded by the district courts in 1985. Seventy percent of the transactions on the court dockets resulted in cases being concluded. In general district courts, 28 percent of all transactions were continuances while in juvenile and domestic relations courts 50 percent of the docket activity involved cases continued.

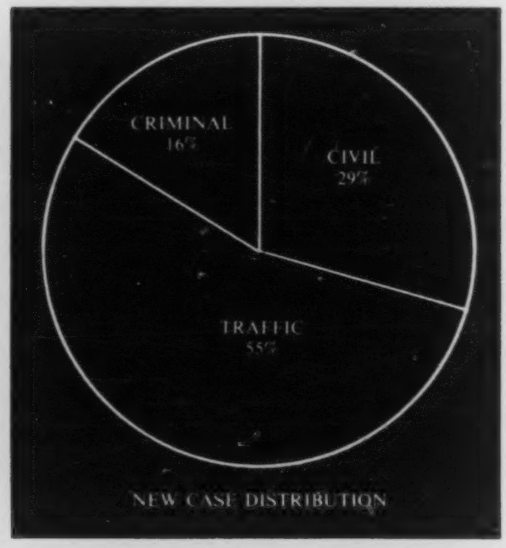
General District Courts

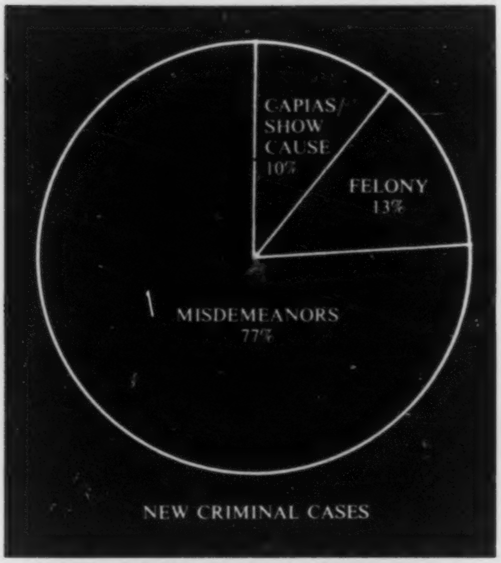
During 1985, 2,310,211 new cases were initiated in the general district courts in Virginia. This represented a 5.3 percent increase in new cases from 1984. There were 2,263,537 hearings held in 1985, a decline of 7.6 percent from the previous year due primarily to changes in the caseload reporting system for civil cases. The number of cases concluded in 1985 was 2,276,158 and was a 9.7 percent increase from 1984. Of the 3,147,746 transactions on the docket, 44 percent were cases resulting in a judgment, 28 percent were prepaid traffic offenses and waived hearings, and 28 percent were continuances.



Caseloads increased in all but 6 of the 32 districts in 1985. The Seventeenth District experienced a 24.2 percent increase in caseload while the Thirteenth's caseload declined by 19.8 percent.

The average caseload of the general district court judges was 22,484 new cases and 22,030 hearings held. Judges in urban districts averaged 25,709 new cases while judges in rural districts handled an average of 18,850 new cases. Thus, the urban average declined by 328 cases from 1984 while the average for rural districts increased by 1,169 new cases.

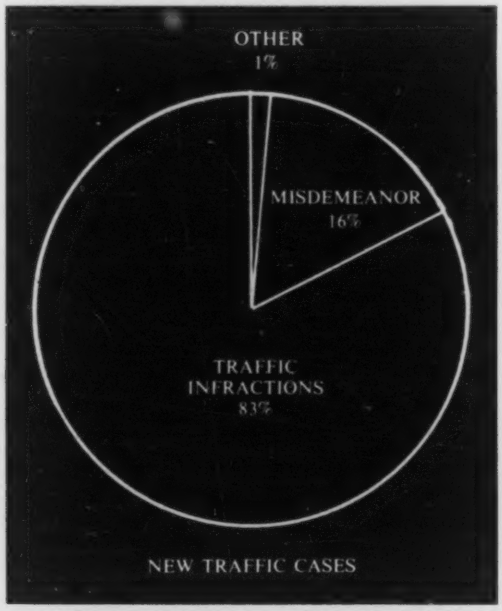
New criminal cases increased by 5.7 percent in 1985 and totaled 362,228. Criminal cases constituted 15.7 percent of the general district court new caseload. Over three-fourths (76.6%) of the new criminal cases were misdemeanors, 13.1 percent were felonies, and 10.3 percent were capias/show cause proceedings. The number of hearings in criminal cases rose 3.5 percent to 680,033. Thus, 1.88 hearings were held for every new criminal case initiated. There were 341,263 criminal cases concluded in 1985. Fifty-two percent of the cases on the docket were continued while prepayments and waived hearings accounted for another 4 percent.



The general district judges averaged 3,525 new criminal cases and 6,618 hearings each in 1985. Thus, while new cases per judge increased 2.6 percent over 1984, hearings held per judge increased by only 0.5 percent.

The Fourth District handled the most new criminal cases (36,812) while District 2A handled the least (2,022). However, the Second District reported the highest number of criminal cases initiated per judge (6,462) among the 32 districts. The Eighteenth's average criminal cases per judge was the lowest (1,851 cases per judge).

The number of new traffic cases increased by 5.1 percent in 1985 to 1,272,903 cases, the most in any one year. Traffic matters accounted for 55 percent of all general district court new cases. There were 1,094,140 traffic hearings held, an average of 0.86 hearings per new traffic case. The bulk of new traffic cases were traffic infractions (82.8%), while misdemeanors accounted for 16 percent. Capias/show cause proceedings represented 1 percent of total new traffic cases while felonies made up less than one percent. Eighty percent of the traffic transactions on the court docket were concluded cases. However, 89 percent of all traffic infraction transactions were cases concluded with 41 percent being prepayment.



The Nineteenth District reported the most traffic cases in 1985 (163,236) and held the most traffic hearings (119,841). However, the Sixth District handled more traffic cases per judge (27,416 cases) than any of the other districts while the Twenty-First District had the fewest (3,713 new cases per judge). The statewide average for 1985 was 12,388 new traffic cases and 10,649 traffic hearings held per judge.

Almost thirty percent (29.2%) of the general district caseload involved civil cases. The courts reported 675,080 new civil cases in 1985, an increase of 5.6 percent. Civil hearings decreased 33.4 percent primarily due to changes in the way such hearings were counted. Garnishments accounted for 11.5 percent of the new civil caseload while motion for judgments accounted for 11.8

percent. Other civil cases types such as civil warrants, detinue cases, unlawful detainers, represented 76.7 percent of the caseload. There were 0.72 hearings held per new civil case in 1985. More civil cases were concluded (680,222) than were initiated and 78 percent of all civil transactions were the concluding of cases. Of the civil cases concluded in 1985, 56 percent were concluded by change of venue, removal, or dismissal. Thirty-eight percent were concluded by default judgment while only 7 percent were concluded by final judgment.

The Thirteenth District reported the largest number of new civil cases in 1985 (115,644 new cases) while the Twenty-Eighth reported the fewest (4,330). The Thirteenth also handled the highest number of civil cases per judge (14,456) among the 32 districts while the Twenty-Eighth had the smallest number (2,165 civil cases per judge). The statewide average was 6,570 new civil cases per judge as well as 4,763 hearings held. Thus, the average new civil caseload per judges increased by 2.5 percent from 1984 to 1985.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts

The juvenile and domestic relations district courts experienced a 10.3 percent increase in new cases in 1985 and a 2.2 percent increase in hearings held. There were 232,595 new cases initiated and 422,433 hearings held while 217,538 cases were concluded.

The largest juvenile and domestic relations caseload was experienced in the Nineteenth District with 20,506 new cases and 33,530 hearings held. District Two-A reported the lowest juvenile and domestic relations caseload of 1,411 new cases and 2,072 hearings. Of the 32 judicial districts, 27 reported increases in juvenile and domestic relations caseload in 1985. The Eighteenth District had the largest percentage increase with a 79.4 percent rise while the Thirteenth experienced the largest percentage decline (27.5%).

Statewide, the juvenile and domestic relations court judges averaged 3,359 new cases and 6,100 hearings in 1985. Thus, the average number of cases per judge increased 1.8 percent in 1985 while the number of hearings held per judge increased by 10.3 percent. In the urban districts, judges averaged 3,756 new cases while in rural districts the average was 2,982 cases. The Thirty-First District reported the most juvenile and domestic relations case per judge (5,828) while the Seventeenth experienced the fewest (1,505 cases per judge).

 Implementation of the Uniform Docketing Caseload Reporting System

* Revision of the Uniform Docketing and Caseload Reporting System

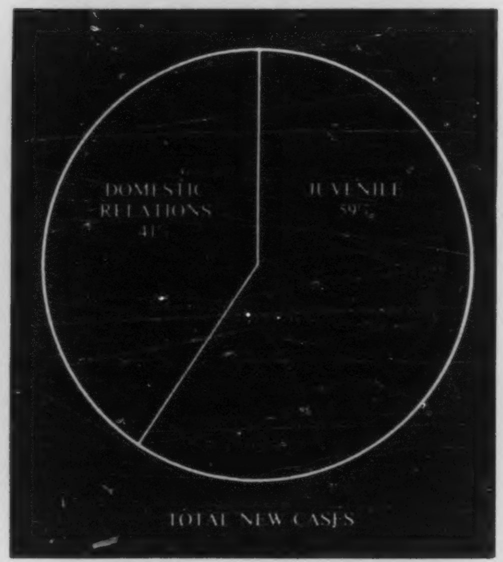
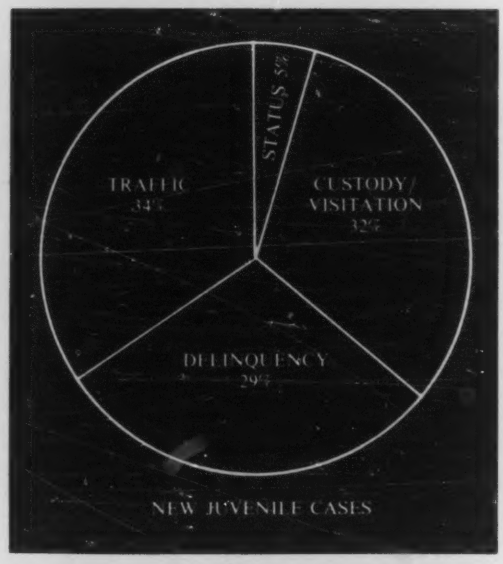
New juvenile cases increased by 5.7 percent in 1985. The 136,116 new juvenile cases accounted for almost 59 percent of the new juvenile and domestic relations caseload. There was also a modest increase (2.2%) in the number of hearings held. Traffic cases represented 34 percent of the juvenile caseload with custody/visitation cases accounting for 32 percent. Delinquency cases constituted 29 percent while status cases made up only 5 percent.



TOTAL NEW CASES

The Nineteenth District reported the largest number of new juvenile cases (15,231) and juvenile hearings held (23,559) in 1985. The Thirty-First District had the greatest caseload per judge (4,099 cases) while the Eleventh District experienced the fewest juvenile cases per judge (1,018). The statewide average was 1,966 new juvenile cases and 3,509 juvenile hearings held.

The 243,015 juvenile hearings held resulted in an average of 1.79 hearings per new case in 1985, a decline from 1984 when juvenile and domestic relations courts averaged 1.85 juvenile hearings per judge. There were 129,598 juvenile cases concluded in 1985. Of these, almost 5 percent were prepayments of traffic offenses. Juvenile cases were continued at a rate of 0.49. Delinquency and status cases were more likely to be continued than either traffic or custody/visitation cases.



NEW JUVENILE CASES

The domestic relations caseload consisted of 96,479 new cases and 179,418 hearings held. Thus, new domestic relations cases increased 17.6 percent from 1984 while hearings held increased 2.2 percent. Domestic relations accounted for 41 percent of the juvenile and domestic relations caseload. Forty percent of the domestic relations cases involved civil support, 27 percent involved misdemeanors, 23 percent were capias/show cause proceedings, 6 percent were felony cases, and 4 percent dealt with criminal support.

The Second District reported the largest number of domestic relations cases (5,360) while the Nineteenth District held the most hearings (8,386). On a per judge basis, District Two-A had the greatest domestic relations caseload with 2,624 new cases per judge. The Seventeenth District had the lowest number of cases per judge (308). The statewide average for domestic relations cases was 1,393 new cases and 2,591 hearings.

NEW DOMESTIC RELATIONS CASES

There were 1.86 hearings held for each new domestic relations case in 1985, a decrease from 1984 when 2.14 hearings were held for each case. Slightly more than half (51%) of all docket transactions were the continuance of cases. Of the 87,940 domestic relations cases concluded in 1985, less than 1 percent were waived hearings in felony cases. Thus, over 99 percent of the domestic relations cases required court involvement.

THE MAGISTRATE SYSTEM

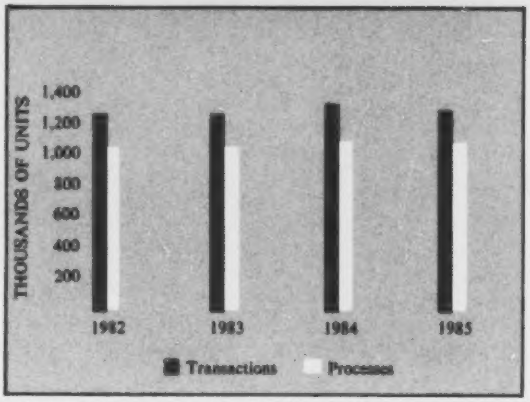
There were 32 Chief Magistrates and 417 magistrates authorized to serve in the Virginia Magistrate System during 1985. Magistrates are appointed by the Chief Circuit Court Judge for a four-year term. Within the first six months of the term of their appointments, magistrates undergo training and a certification process administered locally and through the Supreme Court.

Magistrates are to provide independent, unbiased reviews of complaints brought to their offices by police officers, sheriffs, deputies and citizens. One of the primary duties of magistrate is conducting bond hearings to set bail in instances in which an individual is charged with a criminal offense. Magistrates also issue various types of processes such as arrest warrants, summonses, search warrants, subpoenas, and civil warrants. A magistrate may also accept prepayments for traffic infractions and minor misdemeanors.

Each judicial district has authorization for a number of magistrates and one chief magistrate. Many of the more urbanized areas utilize full-time magistrates who work on a shift basis to maintain an office twenty-four hours a day. On the other hand, most of the rural magistrates work on a availability basis and are contacted as needed. Other magistrates work on a fixed schedule during the day and are "on call" in the evenings.

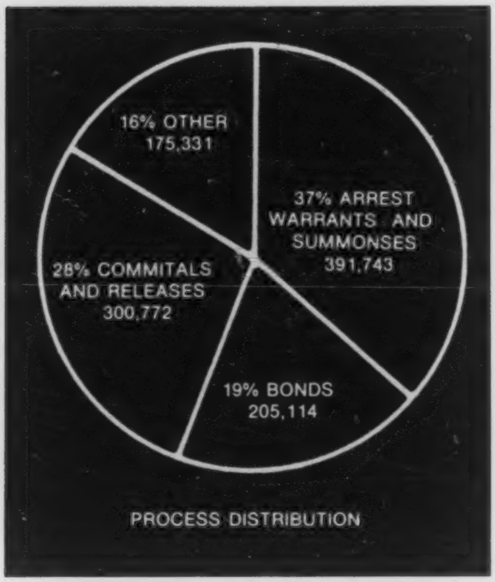
In 1985, the 449 magistrates in the Virginia magistrate system reported being on duty 1,280,311 hours and spending 569,534 hours to provide services to the public. There were 1,282,133 requests for processes along with 752,146 telephone calls and 299,583 in person inquiries recorded by magistrates. The number of requests for processes decreased by 3.6 percent from 1984. In response to the requests, magistrates issued 1,072,960 processes including 345,499 arrest warrants, 46,244 summonses, 205,114 bonds, 96,184 civil warrants, 44,365 subpoenas, 5,788 mental detention orders, and 3,231 search warrants. Magistrates also processed 166,598 committals to jail, 134,174 releases from jail, and received payment for 20,720 traffic infractions and 5,043 class IV misdemeanors. The total number of processes issued decreased by 0.5 percent in 1985. However, the number of arrest warrants issued increased (by 0.7%), as did the number of summonses (5.1%), mental detention orders (18.5%), civil warrants (2.9%), and subpoenas (5.1%).

MAGISTRATE SYSTEM
TRANSACTIONS AND PROCESSES



The Nineteenth District reported the largest number of processes issued (100,523) among the 32 districts. Magistrates in the Fourth District issued the second largest number of processes (99,154). Thirteen of the 32 districts reported increases in processes issued, the largest percentage increase occurring in the First District which experienced a 9.8 percent increase. The Twenty-Third District reported the largest decline in processes issued, a decrease of 11.4 percent.

Statewide, magistrates issued processes at a rate of 84 for every 100 requests. This was a slight increase from 1984 when magistrates issued 81 processes for every 100 requests. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 91 for every 100 requests while 91 search warrants were issued for every 100 requested.



PROCESS DISTRIBUTION

The number of bonds processed declined from 209,580 in 1984 to 205,114 in 1985, a drop of 2.1 percent. Bonds in felony cases accounted for 14 percent of all bonds issued while bonds in misdemeanor cases accounted for 86 percent. As in previous years, unsecured bonds were issued at a rate of 1.7 for every secured bond. Bonds issued represented 19.4 percent of the total processes issued in 1985.

The number of committals processed declined by 2 percent in 1985 while the number of releases declined by 4 percent. Prepayments of traffic infractions and class IV misdemeanors fell by 6 percent and 22 percent respectively. The number of search warrants issued also declined (2.3%).

MEDICAL MALPRACTICE REVIEW PANELS

A system of Medical Malpractice Review Panels was instituted in late 1976. Since this time, over a thousand panels have been requested. During calendar year 1985, 146 panels were assigned, a decrease of 31 (17.5%) from the previous year. Since the inception of the Medical Review System, an average of 124 panels per year has been processed.

From the first panel assignment on December 6, 1976 through December 31, 1985, 1,112 panels have been requested through the Supreme Court. Of this total, 520 have been concluded, 68 dismissed, 325 withdrawn and 199 remain in a pending or to-be-heard status as of the end of 1985.

The 1977 General Assembly amended the original legislation setting up Medical Malpractice Review Panel System and provided the following opinions which a panel might determine pursuant to Section 8.01-581.7 of the Code of Virginia:

1. Evidence does not support a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care;
2. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is a proximate cause in the alleged damages;
3. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure in not a proximate cause in the alleged damages; or
4. Evidence indicates that there is a material issue of fact, not requiring an expert opinion, bearing on liability for consideration by a court or jury (i.e., the case contains a material issue of fact that a court or jury can resolve without an expert opinion).

Of the 621 decisions* which had been rendered as of December 31, 1985, 488 (79%) favored the health care provider, 75 (12%) favored the claimant, and the remaining 58 (9%) fell within the last two opinion categories of Section 8.01-581.7.

During 1985, Northern Virginia again led as the section of the state where the greatest number of medical malpractice claims were filed. Northern Virginia was followed by the Tidewater area and then Southwest Virginia. As illustrated on the following page, hospital administrators, OB-GYN physicians, dentists and general surgeons are the groups accounting for the largest number of panel requests.

---

* Total differs from Panels Concluded due to the fact that more than one opinion may be rendered in a case.

Caseload Summaries By Circuit and District

FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Chesapeake comprises the First Judicial Circuit. According to the 1980 Census, the city's population was 114,486. From this base, the state Department of Planning and Budget estimated the 1985 population as 125,800, reflecting a 9.8 percent of change over 1980. Further projections infer an increase of 13 percent for the years 1985 to 1990, resulting in a total population of 142,000.

William L. Forbes and Russell I. Townsend, Jr. served the circuit courts in the First Circuit during 1985. Judge Townsend filled the vacancy left by Judge William H. Hodges, who was elected to serve on the Court of Appeals in January, 1985. Judge Townsend was elevated from the general district court in February, 1985, the same month Judge Charles B. Cross retired. This created two vacancies in the general district court. These vacancies were filled in March by Stephen L. Comfort and Robert R. Carter. Judges E. P. Grissom and James A. Leftwich presided over the juvenile and domestic relations court during the term. The two temporary vacancies in the general court contributed to the use of 99 recalled retired judge days. Substitute days decreased from 34 in 1984 to 22.5 in 1985. Overall, the district's total of substitute and recalled retired judges amounted to 41.7 days per judge.

In the circuit court, cases commenced increased by 47 (3,069) in 1985 as compared to 1984 (3,022). This increase was due solely to a 10.2 percent rise in criminal cases. Civil cases decreased by 4.2 percent. The largest percentage of civil cases were divorces (43%). The distribution of new cases was 22 percent law, 35 percent equity, 28 percent felony and 15 percent misdemeanor. Nearly one-half (48.8%) of the 1,604 concluded civil cases received disposition within one year of filing. Of the criminal cases concluded, 92.6 percent were disposed of within five months of initiation. There was an 8.2 percent increase in pending cases (255) over 1984.

The Chesapeake General District Court recorded 43,937 new cases in 1985. The 7,586 criminal cases consisted primarily of misdemeanor charges which totaled 5,528. A total of 22,478 new traffic cases were initiated; 16,989 of which were traffic infractions. Of the traffic cases concluded, 29 percent were prepaid. Civil cases demonstrated the sharpest increase, 30.3 percent over 1984. The judges in the First District concluded 1,743 more cases than were initiated in 1985 resulting in an overall decrease in cases remaining on the docket. Chesapeake General District Court judges ranked second in the state in average number of hearings per judge.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court revealed a significant increase of adult cases (40.1%). The 3,444 juvenile cases included 1,658 involving custody/visitation (52%) as well as 881 delinquency cases, 866 juvenile traffic cases, and 39 status cases. The adult cases (2,818) consisted of 1,069 civil support cases, 782 misdemeanors, 245 felonies, 518 capias/show cause proceedings, as well as 204 criminal support cases. The average number of hearings per adult case was 2.16, down from 3.35 in 1984.

In 1985, the nine magistrates of the First District reported 15,106 hours of activity. During this time, telephone calls increased by 5 percent (to 17,563) and inquiries from the public increased by 9.5 percent (to 3,741). Transactions and processes increased by 9.2 percent and 9.8 percent respectively. The 8,039 arrest warrants issued resulted from 8,972 requests (90%) and comprised 33 percent of the processes issued. Forty-eight percent of the bonds issued were unsecured (2,568) while 52 percent were secured (2,806). Other processes issued by the magistrates increased by smaller percentages; civil warrants, 9.4 percent (9,978); committals and releases, 16 percent (2,940), and subpoenas, 15 percent (696). Search warrants decreased by 16 percent (105).

SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Second Judicial Circuit serves the city of Virginia Beach and the counties of Accomack and Northampton. By the year 1990, Virginia Beach is projected to grow by 14.5 percent, totaling a population of 352,300. In contrast, the counties of Accomack and Northampton are expected to grow by only 3.2 percent. In the year 2000, the combined growth of the counties and the city will elevate the Second Circuit to the second most populous in the state.

An additional judgeship was authorized by the General Assembly in 1985 raising the total from seven to eight judges. John K. Moore filled this judgeship in July, 1985. Thus, during the year, N. Wescott Jacob, Henry L. Lam, Austin E. Owen, Philip L. Russo, H. Calvin Spain, Kenneth N. Whitehurst and Edward W. Hanson Jr. and John K. Moore presided over the Second Circuit. In January, 1986, Henry L. Lam retired from the circuit court and was replaced by Alan E. Rosenblatt from the district court in March. Judges John B. Preston, R. Stanley Hudgins, Edward W. Hanson, Jr., Robert L. Simpson, and Alan E. Rosenblatt served in the general district court of Virginia Beach. The juvenile and domestic relations district court was served by Fred P. Aucamp, Jerome B. Friedman, and J. Davis Reed. Judge Friedman's term began in July due to Judge Moore's election to the circuit court. As of July of 1986, an additional judgeship will be authorized and will be filled by Ronald H. Marks. Judge Wescott B. Northam continued to serve a combined judgeship for the district courts on the Eastern Shore (Judicial District Two-A). Substitute and recalled retired days per judge were 25.9 for the general district and juvenile and domestic relations court.

Commenced cases in the circuit court increased by 6.3 percent (10,302) in 1985. This increase is comparable to the 1984 increase of 5.9 percent. Civil cases reflected a dramatic growth of 9.7 percent over 1984's increase of 1.3 percent. Criminal cases increased by 1.7 percent (4,208). However, this was down from a 12.8 rise in 1984. The majority of criminal commenced cases were classified as other felonies (57%) while 5 percent were class 1 and 2 felonies. The remaining 38 percent encompassed misdemeanor charges. Nearly four-fifths (78.5%) of all concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months of initiation. In civil matters, 66 percent (3,521) of the total concluded cases were closed after one year.

The Second Judicial District encompasses solely the City of Virginia Beach. The district ranks first in criminal caseload per judge (25,849). This new caseload increased 32.2 percent (6,337) in 1985 as compared to only a 6.5 percent increase in 1984. The new criminal caseload was made up mostly (77%) of misdemeanors (20,002), while felonies comprised another 8.7 percent. Traffic cases decreased by 6.5 percent in 1985 and were comprised primarily of minor infractions (83.4%). Traffic misdemeanors accounted for 13 percent of total new traffic cases. Hearings decreased by 6 percent (114,235) in 1985, although the district ranked fourth in the state for general district hearings.

The juvenile and domestic relations court recorded significant increases in both juvenile and adult cases. Juvenile cases increased by 10.8 percent and adult cases increased by 16 percent. An analysis of these cases reveals that 38.6 percent were traffic related, 31.3 percent involved delinquency, 24.6 percent concerned custody/visitation and 5.5 percent were status offenses. Most cases in the domestic relations area involved either misdemeanors (22%) or civil support (54%). In accordance with the increase in new cases and the addition of one judgeship, hearings increased by 20 percent (27,126) to raise the court to second in the state in juvenile and domestic court hearings.

Sixteen magistrates contributed 26,942 activity hours in 1985. Of the 56,815 transactions that took place, 84 percent (47,688) resulted in a process being issued. Nine out of every ten arrest warrants requested were issued. The percent distributions of felonies and misdemeanors were 39 percent and 24 percent respectively. A total of 8,242 bonds were issued with 29.5 percent being secured bonds and 70.5 percent unsecured bonds. Other figures reveal that the 8,281 subpoenas issued ranks first in the state and the 226 search warrants issued rank second in the state.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT TWO-A

The counties of Accomack and Northampton together form District Two-A on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. The district experienced a moderate increase (5.4%) in new cases in the general district court. New civil cases expanded 42.1 percent to reach 8,438 cases while criminal cases decreased by 9.5 percent and totaled 2,022 cases. Civil cases in Northampton increased by 56.2 percent compared to 37.6 percent for neighboring Accomack county. Criminal cases declined 11.9 percent in Accomack and 3.9 percent in Northampton. Decreases in traffic cases in both counties contributed to the overall 9.1 percent decrease in traffic cases with Northampton decreasing 6.5 percent (241) while cases in Accomack decreased 10.2 percent (1,154). The district's distribution of new cases emphasized traffic (52.4%) and to a lesser extent civil (38.4%) and criminal (9.2%) cases.

The composite picture of activity in the juvenile and domestic relations court revealed increases in both juvenile (10.1%) and adult (40.2%) cases. An examination of the two counties indicated significant differences in the proportion of new juvenile cases. In Accomack County, these cases increased by 15 percent (70) in contrast to Northampton's decrease of 0.5 percent (-1 case). Adult cases grew in both counties; Northampton, 47.7 percent (72) and Accomack, 36.6 percent (116). Overall, Northampton's total juvenile and domestic relations caseload rose by 19.2 percent while Accomack's increased by 23.7 percent.

A new magistrate position was created in November, 1985 in Accomack County. Consequently, five magistrates now serve District 2-A. These magistrates tallied 3,808 activity hours, answered 4,370 telephone calls and received 490 public inquiries. Total transactions equaled 4,645, resulting in 3,879 processes issued. Fifty-one percent of the magistrates activities were arrest warrants (1,988). These warrants were composed of 79 percent misdemeanors and 18.6 percent felonies. Unsecured bonds accounted for 70.5 percent of all bonds issued, leaving 29.5 percent as secured. Supplementary activity statistics include 825 committal and releases, 29 subpoenas, 55 mental detention orders and 12 search warrants.

THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Third Judicial Circuit serves the City of Portsmouth exclusively. The city has experienced a 6 percent decline in population between the census figures for 1970 and 1980. Portsmouth's population is projected to steadily decline at an average rate of 4.6 percent between 1980 and 1995. The estimated population for 1985 is 101,400 and is expected to be 97,300 by 1995.

The judges serving the circuit court in 1985 were Dennis F. McMurran, William H. Oast, Jr., and Lester E. Schiltz. The general district court judges included Archie Elliott, Jr., Stanley L. Morris, Jr., and James A. Cales, Jr. The juvenile and domestic relations district court was served by Cecil W. Johnson and Von L. Piersall. In 1985, the five district court judges used less than one full day (.9) per judge for substitute and recalled retired judges. Consequently, the district reported the lowest average of assistance days per judge in the state.

The circuit court experienced an 8 percent (4,189) increase in commenced cases. Sixty percent (2,517) of these cases were criminal and the remaining 40 percent were civil (1,672). The total criminal cases commenced were composed of 4 percent class 1 and 2 felonies, 50 percent other felonies, and 46 percent misdemeanor charges. Civil cases were predominantly divorce cases (43%), accounting for 724 cases. Of the civil cases concluded, 56.7 percent (786) had been filed in the same year. Most of the concluded civil cases (84%) had been disposed after two years. The majority of criminal cases concluded (85.5%) spent one to five months on the docket. Within nine months, all but 1.2 percent of the criminal concluded cases had reached disposition.

In 1985, Portsmouth's general district court experienced a small drop in caseload (-0.3%). This decrease was due to fewer traffic cases (-12.9%). Criminal cases increased by 15.9 percent while new civil cases grew by 7.1 percent. Eighty-five percent of new criminal cases were misdemeanors while 8 percent involved felonies. Most of the new traffic cases were minor infractions (84%). The number of hearings declined by 7.0 percent. The average number of hearings per case for the general district court was 1.14.

A significant expansion of workload and activity characterized the juvenile and domestic relations court in 1985. New cases swelled 44.9 percent. Hearings increased by 18.7 percent (13,190) which aided in the conclusion of 5,701 cases. The 6,125 new cases resulted in a difference of 424 additional cases carried over into 1986. Adult cases increased 68.8 percent with civil support matters accounting for 41.3 percent of this total. Adult misdemeanors comprised 24.3 percent of the adult caseload. Juvenile cases involved 43 percent (1,274) custody/visitation disputes, 31 percent delinquency issues, 25 percent traffic cases and one percent status offenses. In comparison with the other juvenile and domestic relations courts, the Third District ranked 20th in new cases and 14th in number of hearings.

One new magistrate position was authorized in 1985 in the Third District, thus creating six positions. The six magistrates logged 11,815 activity hours and attended to 29,405 transactions (a 5% increase). They also received 20,650 telephone calls and 5,784 public inquiries. Eighty-six percent of the transactions resulted in the initiation of processes. Arrest warrants accounted for 34 percent of the processes, 77.4 percent of which were misdemeanor warrants, 9.3 percent felony warrants and 13 percent summons. Twenty percent of the processes involved bonding. Unsecured bonds totaled 3,125 (52% of all bonds issued) while 2,925 secured bonds accounted for the remainder (48%). Bonds were issued at an average of 6.3 per 10 requested. Supplementary processes include 986 subpoenas, 68 search warrants, 519 mental detention orders, 7,375 committals and releases and 55 prepayments for traffic offenses.

FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Serving the Tidewater city of Norfolk is the Fourth Judicial Circuit. According to the 1980 Census, Norfolk's population of 266,979 was 15 percent below the figure from the 1970 census. The Department of Planning & Budget predicts that the population will continue to decline at a projected rate of 5 percent between 1985 and 1990. By the year 2000, the population is estimated to be 240,000, an 11 percent decline from the 1980 census.

The Fourth's Circuit Court consists of nine judgeships. In February, 1985, Leonard B. Sachs replaced Joseph E. Baker, who was elected to the Court of Appeals. Therefore, presiding in the courts were Judges William Moultrie Guerry, Morris B. Gutterman, John E. Clarkson, Thomas R. McNamara, Jerome James, Robert W. Stewart, Alfred Whitehurst and J. W. Winston. Judge Morris B. Gutterman retired from the bench in March, 1986. Charles R. Waters has since been elected to fill this vacancy. There are six judgeships authorized in the general district court. In 1985, the members of this bench included Joseph A. Jordans, Lawrence C. Lawless, Fred E. Martin, Jr., Joseph H. Campbell, Reid M. Spencer and Lydia C. Taylor. Judge Campbell was newly elected in February when Judge Sachs moved up to the circuit court. Judge Taylor assumed the recently created judgeship in July of 1985. In 1986, Judge Jordans resigned from the bench and was replaced by Charles R. Cloud. The juvenile and domestic relations court judges occupied three positions. The judges that served were James H. Flippen, Jr., John C. Morrison, Jr. and Lester V. Moore, Jr. In 1985, the district court judges utilized 20.5 assistance days per judge.

Commenced circuit court cases increased only slightly in 1985 (1.3%). Civil cases constituted 38 percent (4,738 cases) of the total new caseload and consisted of 49 percent law, 32 percent divorce, 11 percent equity and 9 percent appeals cases. The civil caseload ranked fourth in the state. However, the number of civil cases per judge ranked 27th. Criminal cases remained relatively constant (.2% growth) and were divided into a somewhat equal distribution of 49 percent felonies and 51 percent misdemeanors. Concluded cases increased 11.1 percent over 1984 and pending cases declined by 2.2 percent. In a two-year time frame, 75 percent of the total number of civil concluded cases had been disposed. Criminal concluded cases were typically determined between one to five months (61.2%) after initiation.

With 97,547 new cases, the Norfolk General District Court retained its rank of third highest in the state. Norfolk ranked first in criminal cases, second in civil cases and third in traffic cases statewide. The distribution of new cases in the general district court was 41 percent traffic, 19 percent criminal and 40 percent civil. New criminal cases decreased by 2,421 cases or 6.2 percent, and consisted of 84 percent misdemeanors and 10 percent felonies. Traffic cases increased 12.7 percent with 76,124 infractions, 6,146 misdemeanors and 123 felonies. Hearings in the general district court (203,381) ranked second highest in the state.

The juvenile and domestic relations court ranked third in the state in new cases. There was little change in the number of juvenile cases (0.8%) but a substantial increase in adult cases (12.6%). Juvenile cases were predominately custody/visitation (40%) and delinquency (38%) cases. Juvenile cases comprised 59 percent of the total cases whereas adult cases comprised 41 percent. Adult cases were essentially 33 percent misdemeanors, 47 percent civil support, and 8 percent felonies.

The thirteen magistrates in the Fourth District ranked second in number of processes issued (99,154) and transactions (114,833). Reflecting the same rate as the previous year, 8.6 out of 10 requests for process were granted. The magistrates recorded 23,518 activity hours in which they answered 49,391 phone calls and received 36,204 public inquiries. Ninety-four percent of requested arrest warrants were issued, totaling 32,652. Misdemeanors accounted for 54 percent of all warrants issued, felonies tallied 4,094 (13%) and summonses accounted for 33 percent (10,844). Collectively, secured and unsecured bonds were issued at a rate of 48 per 100 requested. Sixty-five percent of these bonds were secured while the remainder of 35 percent (3,935) were unsecured. Other magistrate activity included 207 search warrants and 31,604 jail committals and releases.

FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The cities of Suffolk and Franklin and the counties of Isle of Wight and Southampton make up the Fifth Judicial Circuit. The population of this circuit according to the 1980 census was 95,263. The Department of Planning & Budget projects a population of 100,600 for the year 1990, a 5.6 percent growth rate over this ten year span.

In 1985, E. Everett Bagnell, James C. Godwin and Benjamin A. Williams, Jr. served the circuit courts. In July, 1986, Judge Williams will retire and his vacancy will be filled by Westbrook J. Parker. The general district courts were served by Robert B. Edwards and William Wellington Jones. Judge William R. Moore presided in the juvenile and domestic relations court and continued to receive assistance from the First District. The average number of substitute and retired recalled judge days utilized by the district judges was 37.1 which is above the state average of 21.2 days.

Commenced cases in the circuit court increased by 13.4 percent (2,923) over last year. Civil cases accounted for 42 percent (1,220) and criminal cases 58 percent (1,703) of the new caseload. Both civil and criminal cases increased, 15.6 percent and 11.8 percent respectively. The increase in civil cases was the result of an additional 104 new cases in Isle of Wight. This amounted to a 70 percent rise for this locality. One-third (35%) of the civil cases involved divorce proceedings and 38 percent were attributed to law cases. The distribution of the circuit's criminal caseload was Class 1 and 2 felonies (8%), other felonies (51%), and misdemeanors (40%). A negligible decrease of 0.4 percent in concluded cases was reported for the circuit. Three-fourths of the civil cases concluded were closed within one year while ninety percent were disposed of by the second year. The majority (51.5%) of criminal cases concluded were ended between 31 to 150 days after initial filing. Two-thirds (66.6%) of the criminal cases concluded received disposition within five months after filing. Due to the increase in cases commenced and the slight decline in cases concluded, the pending caseload increased 15.7 percent and totaled 2,978 cases at year's end.

The general district court recorded 46,364 new cases in 1985, a 12.7 percent increase over 1984. This caseload was composed of 13.3 percent criminal, 24.5 percent civil and 62.1 percent traffic cases. The largest percent increase was in civil cases (32.2%). Isle of Wight increased its civil caseload by 81.8 percent, Suffolk increased by 28 percent and Franklin by a comparable 27 percent. Criminal cases increased overall by 15.3 percent (821 cases). Franklin and Suffolk collectively accounted for 83 percent of the overall increase. Hearings increased by only 1.4 percent at a rate of 1.02 hearings per case.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased by 6 percent. New cases in Southampton increased 38 percent, Isle of Wight 35.9 percent, Franklin 6.7 percent while the number of new cases in Suffolk declined 6.7 percent.

Juvenile cases accounted for 44 percent of the juvenile and domestic relations caseload while domestic relations case represented 56 percent. Of the 1,918 juvenile cases, almost 41 percent involved custody/visitation issues while traffic cases accounted for almost 25 percent. Delinquency matters represented 33 percent of the caseload. In the domestic relations area, 30 percent of the cases were capias/show cause proceedings while 27 percent were misdemeanors. One-fourth of the domestic relations caseload involved civil support and another 15 percent were criminal support cases.

Nine magistrates contributed 14,876 activity hours in the Fifth District. They responded to 16,335 telephone calls and 5,933 public inquiries. Processes issued increased by 7.2 percent (24,534) accounting for 78 percent of the transactions. Sixty-five percent (7,251) of the 11,172 arrest warrants requested were issued. Misdemeanor arrest warrants composed 87 percent of the warrants issued. The greater percentage (65.5%) of bonds were secured (3,087 bonds). A total of 1,628 unsecured bonds accounted for the remainder. Other processes issued were 77 subpoenas, 44 search warrants, 249 mental detention orders, 5,267 civil warrants, and 6,575 committals and releases. The magistrates in the Fifth District also accepted 330 prepayments for traffic offenses.

SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Sixth Circuit serves the counties of Brunswick, Greensville, Prince George, Surry, and Sussex as well as the municipalities of Emporia and Hopewell. The 1980 census showed a population total of 97,425 for the circuit. The Department of Planning & Budget projected a total population of 99,200 for the circuit in 1985. According to the projection, Hopewell and Prince George County accounted for half of the circuit's population.

Two judges served the Sixth Circuit in 1985: William Park Lemmond, Jr., and Robert G. O'Hara, Jr. Judge James A. Luke and John C. Baker served the general district court. Judge Baker assumed his judgeship in May 1985 due to the retirement of Judge C. C. Connelly. Samuel E. Campbell and C. A. Perkinson presided over the juvenile and domestic relations court. The four district judges utilized 29.8 assistance days per judge.

Commenced cases in the circuit court remained steady with the previous year. The ten additional cases represented a 0.5 percent growth over the previous year. Civil cases increased by 10 percent while criminal cases declined by 10 percent. Growth in civil cases occurred primarily in Greensville-Emporia (22%), Prince George (19%), and Brunswick (16%). Surry's caseload dropped by 17 percent, Sussex's remained relatively unchanged (-.9%, or 1 case) and Hopewell's caseload grew by a small four percent. Criminal caseloads decreased by 56 cases in Sussex (-47.5%), 95 cases in Greensville-Emporia (-30.4%), and 17 cases (-6.9%) in Hopewell. These decreases were slightly offset by an increase of 59 new cases (60%) in Prince George. Fifty-seven percent of the commenced cases in the Sixth District were civil, while 43 percent were criminal. Concluded cases dropped by 10.3 percent, raising the 1986 pending caseload by 203 cases. Sixty-eight cases were concluded by jury trial. Civil concluded cases typically were decided prior to one year after initiation (67%). Within two years, 80.6 percent of the concluded cases obtained disposition. Seventy-two percent of all concluded criminal cases were completed within 150 days.

The general district court experienced an overall 2.3 percent decline in new cases. Criminal cases dropped significantly, 21.1 percent. Prince George county accounted for most of the decrease in new criminal cases with a 53.5 percent (885 cases) decrease. Traffic cases remained relatively constant, registering only a 1.1 percent decrease. Surry reported a 20.3 percent decline, Emporia 14.7 percent, Brunswick 9.9 percent, Hopewell 5.4% and Sussex 2.9%. Traffic cases in Prince George county increased by 6.4 percent while whose in Greensville rose by 7.6 percent. Civil cases grew by 3.1 percent. primarily due to a 10 percent increase in Brunswick County and a 75 percent (90) increase in Surry. Hearings in the general district court decreased by 10.3 percent. The average number of hearings per case was 0.69. A total of 66,911 cases were concluded.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations courts increased by 19.2 percent. Eighty-nine percent of the increase in new juvenile cases occurred in Hopewell, as did 79 percent of the additional 339 adult cases. Greensville reported an increase of 43 (25.4%) juvenile cases and Prince George increased by 32 (5.5%) new cases. Emporia noted a substantial decrease of 24.3 percent in new juvenile cases. Hearings increased by 7 percent (8,857), fifty-seven percent (5,080) juvenile and 43 percent (3,777) adult. The average number of hearings per case was 2.10.

Eighteen magistrate positions were authorized for the Sixth District in 1985. Transactions and processes were down 4.7 percent and 5.8 percent, respectively. The district logged 19,954 activity hours in which 11,157 telephone transactions ensued and 5,692 in-person inquiries transpired. Of the 8,115 arrest warrants requested, 85 percent were issued. Eighty-three percent of the warrants issued were for misdemeanors while 14 percent were felony charges. Nearly seven out of ten bonds requested were issued. Unsecured bonds accounted for 56 percent of bonds issued. Other magistrate activities included 1,522 subpoenas, 79 search warrants, 69 mental detention orders, 1,230 civil warrants and 5,233 committals and releases. The magistrates also accepted 822 prepayments for traffic infractions.

SEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Seventh Judicial Circuit covers the city of Newport News in the Tidewater Region of Virginia. According to the 1980 Census, 144,903 citizens resided in the city. This municipality was predicted to grow to 148,200 citizens in 1985 and 150,200 in 1986, according to the Department of Planning and Budget.

The three judgeships of the circuit court were served by Fred W. Batemen, Douglas M. Smith and J. Warren Stephens. Judges Robert W. Curran, James H. Harvell and Randolph T. West presided over the general district court with F. Thompson Wheeler, II and Robert M. Yacobi sitting in the juvenile and domestic relations court. The district judges utilized 83.8 assistance days, averaging 16.8 days per judge. This is fewer than the statewide average of 21.2 days per judge.

As was true statewide, the Seventh Circuit experienced less than a 1 percent increase over the caseload reported in 1984. The number of civil cases rose 1.2 percent while criminal cases fell 0.5 percent. Forty-eight percent of the civil cases involved divorce and 34 percent were law cases. Other equity and appeals accounted for the remaining percentages. The criminal cases break out was 67 percent felonies and 33 percent misdemeanors. Although the number of juries impaneled increased by 5.6 percent, overall only 3.5 percent of the criminal cases were decided by jury trial. There were 2,279 civil cases concluded, 79 percent of which had been filed less than one year previously. Eighty-six of all criminal cases concluded were disposed of within 5 months of initiation. The number of pending cases increased three percent or 96 additional cases.

New cases in the general district courts increased by 7.8 percent, the first increase the district has shown in four years. Both new criminal and new traffic cases increased by 7.2 percent while civil cases rose slightly higher at 8.3 percent. The 33,646 civil cases ranked fourth highest statewide in volume. Misdemeanors accounted for 74 percent of the criminal cases while infractions comprised the same percentage of traffic cases. Nearly half (49%) of the new cases are attributed to civil cases. Hearings decreased by 11.6 percent (71,665) while cases concluded (66,820) caused a remainder of 60 additional cases to be carried forth into 1986. Hearings per case averaged 1.07 for the general district.

The caseload of the juvenile and domestic relations court in the Seventh grew by 766 (15.3%) new cases over 1984. Juvenile cases increased by 8.5 percent and comprised 48 percent of the total. Fifty-two percent were new domestic relations cases. The number of hearings increased 20.7 percent (14,891) and ranked highest in the state for juvenile hearings per case (2.61) and second highest (2.56) for adult hearings. Cases concluded totaled 5,599 in contrast to 5,766 new cases, leaving 167 cases to be applied to 1986 caseload.

Six magistrates served the Seventh District in 1985. The magistrates reported 10,602 activity hours and responded to 9,407 public inquiries. Transactions declined 3.6 percent while processes issued increased by 282 (1%). Of the 19,253 requests for arrest warrants, 76 percent (14,553) were actually issued. The distribution of arrest warrants issued was 68 percent misdemeanors, 15 percent felonies and 17 percent summonses. Bonds were issued at a rate of 5 of every 10 requested. Unsecured bonds accounted for 69 percent of all bonds issued. Thirty-one percent of the secured bonds were for felony charges, while 69 percent were misdemeanor charges. In addition to arrest warrants and bonds, the magistrates issued 11 subpoenas, 208 search warrants, 192 mental detention orders, 10,152 committals and releases and accepted three prepayments for traffic infractions.

EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Hampton comprises the Eighth Judicial Circuit. The population in the city for 1985 is 123,000. This is based on the 1980 Census estimation of 122,617. The city is expected to grow by nearly 3,000 people by the year 1990.

Judge Walter J. Ford was elected to the circuit court on February 16, 1985 due to the retirement of Judge Edgar A. Massenburg. Ford joined Judges Nelson T. Overton and John D. Gray on the circuit bench. The general district court was served by Henry D. Kashouty and Thomas H. Wilson, II. The judges were supported by the creation of an additional judgeship position on July 1, 1985. The General Assembly selected Wilford Taylor, Jr. to fill the position. Another new judge, Louis R. Lerner began service in the juvenile and domestics relations court. He was appointed to fill the vacancy created by Paul Crider, Jr. who retired on January 1, 1986. Judge Lerner joined Nelson T. Durden who was recently elected to his third term on the juvenile and domestic relations bench. The judges in the Eighth District utilized 105.9 substitute and retired recalled judge days in FY 1985, an average of 26.5 days per judge. This was slightly above the statewide average of 21.2 days.

Commenced cases in the Eighth Circuit increased by 11.4 percent and totaled 3,290 cases. This was due almost entirely to a 31.4 rise in criminal cases (332 more than in the previous year). Only five more cases were reported in the civil area. Civil cases were 58 percent equity and 42 percent law. The criminal case distribution was 53 percent felony and 47 percent misdemeanor. Of the civil cases concluded, 59 percent were disposed of within one year of filing. Within two years, 83 percent of the civil cases had reached disposition. Nearly all (95.4%) criminal concluded cases were decided within five months. The number of juries impaneled (40) decreased by 29.8 percent in 1985. Pending cases rose by 430 and reached 2,962; this is 17 percent above the 1984 figure.

The caseload in Hampton's general district court increased by 20.7 percent (10,388), and reached 60,652 new cases in 1985. The distribution of cases was 22 percent criminal, 42 percent traffic and 36 percent civil. The 27.1 percent increase in criminal cases represents a total of 2,870 additional cases. The traffic caseload rose by 2,919 cases accounting for a 12.9 percent increase in this case type. Civil cases accounted for the greatest number of new cases (4,599). This represented a 26.9 percent increase over 1984. Hearings per case averaged 1.28, contributing to 57,560 concluded cases.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court jumped 41.2 percent (1,912). Juvenile cases showed a 1,314 increase (48.9%) while adult cases increased by 598 (30.6%) cases. Juvenile cases consisted of 27 percent traffic, 30 percent delinquency, 41 percent custody/visitation and 2 percent status cases. The adult case distribution was 26 percent misdemeanor, 3 percent felony, 23 percent capias/show cause and 48 percent civil support. The total number of hearings held (15,900) rose 9 percent. The number of hearings per case was 2.42, above the state average of 1.83. There were 6,280 cases concluded in the Eighth District or 277 fewer cases concluded than were initiated.

Hampton's six magistrates recorded 10,515 activity hours. During this time, they responded to 13,128 telephone calls and 4,519 public inquiries. Transactions increased by 2 percent (27,119). However, processes issued declined by a narrow 0.6 percent. Nine out of 10 arrest warrants requested were issued. These warrants were composed of 84 percent misdemeanors, 13 percent felonies and 3 percent summonses. Of the 11,445 bonds requested, 5,652 (49%) were issued. Approximately one-third (32%) of these bonds were secured and 68 percent were unsecured. Other magistrate acvitivies included 11 subpoenas, 120 search warrants, 302 mental detention orders, 387 committals and releases and 189 prepayments for traffic infractions.

NINTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

One other circuit in Virginia (the Twenty-Fifth) surpasses the number of localities served by the Ninth Judicial Circuit. Only one other circuit (the Fifteenth) serves an equal number of jurisdictions. Nine counties (Charles City, Gloucester, James City, King and Queen, King William, Mathews, Middlesex, New Kent and York) and two cities (Poquoson and Williamsburg) make up the Ninth Circuit. The combined population of James City and York counties comprised 41 percent of the 1980 Census (143,418) for the circuit. An increase of 8.8 percent was expected for 1985 resulting in an approximate total of 156,100 citizens. The 1990 population is estimated to be 11 percent higher than 1985 for a total of 174,000 citizens.

The Ninth Circuit Court continued to be served by Judges Russell M. Carneal, John E. DeHardit and G. Duane Holloway. Presiding over the general district court were Judges William T. Bareford and J. R. Zepkin. The two juvenile and domestic relations court judgeships were filled by Herbert I. L. Feild and John G. Sowder. Judge Sowder retired in January 1986 and Samuel T. Powell was elected to fill the vacancy. The four district court judges utilized 27.1 assistance days per judge.

Circuit court commenced cases increased by 7.7 percent (247), with civil cases growing by 3.6 percent and criminal cases by 13.4 percent. The caseload was comprised of 19 percent law, 36 percent equity, 25 percent felony and 20 percent misdemeanor cases. Seventy percent of the commenced cases can be attributed to the localities of York (30%), Williamsburg/James City (22%) and Gloucester (18%). Of the cases concluded, 63 percent of civil cases had been on the docket one year or less, and 59 percent of criminal cases averaged one to five months from initiation to conclusion. Although concluded cases rose 4.4 percent, this did not offset the increase in commenced cases. The resultant 372 cases increased pending cases by 12.9 percent. Juries impaneled dropped a sharp 22.2 percent.

The general district courts reported a 6 percent increase in new cases. These cases were comprised of 19 percent criminal, 64 percent traffic, and 17 percent civil cases. Criminal cases were primarily misdemeanors (81%) although felonies accounted for 11 percent and capias/show cause action, 8 percent. Traffic cases were almost entirely minor infractions (92%). Decreases in criminal cases of 12.5 percent (-159) in Gloucester County and 33 percent (256) in Mathews County contributed considerably to the district-wide decrease in new criminal cases. Three localities substantially contributed to the growth in new traffic cases. York grew by 17 percent (984), New Kent by 13 percent (627) and James City by 9.9 percent (499). Hearings in the district rose by 959 (2.3%) and hearings per case averaged 1.00.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased by 981 (22.4%). Fifty-three percent of the new cases were juvenile cases while 47 percent involved domestic relations matters. Traffic offenses accounted for 50% of the juvenile caseload while status offenses represented ten percent. The 2,510 adult cases were 26 percent misdemeanors, 6 percent felonies, 28 percent capias/show cause and 40 percent civil support. The 44.1 percent increase in adult cases was a result of a 25 percent (105) increase in York County and a 26 percent (490) increase in Williamsburg/James City. Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations court marginally increased by 5 percent.

The Ninth District is served by 19 magistrates. The 13,919 activity hours of these magistrates involved 18,770 transactions and 16,657 processes. Transactions and processes decreased substantially in 1985, 12.9 percent and 8.1 percent respectively. The magistrates attended to 8,229 telephone calls and 5,677 public inquiries. Of the 7,459 arrest warrants requested, 89 percent (6,652) were issued. Felony warrants accounted for 16 percent of those issued. Bonds were issued at a rate of 67 percent (2,675) of those requested (3,969). Nearly three-fourths (73%) of these bonds were unsecured and 27 percent were secured. Additional magistrate duties included 23 subpoenas, 71 search warrants, 22 mental detention orders, 3,786 civil warrants, 2,948 committals and releases and 338 prepayments for traffic infractions and 142 Class 4 misdemeanors.

TENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Tenth Circuit serves the eight counties of Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Halifax, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, and Prince Edward and the city of South Boston. The 1980 Census population registered 139,585 persons. By 1990, the population is estimated to grow to 146,400, a 3 percent increase over 1985.

Judge Charles L. McCormick III and John R. Snoddy, Jr. served the circuit in 1985. The three judges on the general district bench were William Hay, Jr., Robert B. Spencer, Jr., and Irvin D. Sugg. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations court were William L. Wellons and J. Taylor Williams. The five district judges utilized 19.6 assistance days per judge which was below the statewide average of 21.2 days.

The number of circuit court commenced cases dropped by 20 (.8%) in 1985. Although civil cases increased by 14.4 percent, criminal cases decreased by 15.4 percent, resulting in a steady rate of total new cases. The caseload composition was 62 percent civil and 38 percent criminal. The distribution of cases was 28 percent law, 34 percent equity, 28 percent felony, and 10 percent misdemeanor. All localities except Halifax and Charlotte reported decreased criminal caseloads. Circuit-wide increases in new civil cases can be attributed primarily to a 24 percent increase (115) in Halifax county and an 11 percent increase (27) in Mecklenburg county. Cases concluded increased by 7 percent or 150 more cases than in 1984. Three-fifths (61%) of concluded civil cases were less than one year old at disposition. By the end of the 24 months, 81 percent of these cases had been ended. Within five months of filing, 71 percent of concluded criminal cases reached disposition. Pending cases increased by 8.5 percent despite the rise in concluded cases. The relatively high number of commenced cases appears to account for the increasing number of pending cases.

The general district court experienced a 2.7 percent increase in new cases. Two-thirds of these cases were traffic, 22 percent civil, and 12 percent criminal. The small overall growth in new criminal cases (0.4%) was the result of a 446 decrease (25%) in Buckingham County which counteracted marginal increases in other counties. District-wide, traffic cases decreased by 1.4 percent. The 19.7 percent (1,728) increase in civil cases was distributed among the five counties of Appomattox (432), Charlotte (280), Lunenburg (259), Mecklenburg (313), and Prince Edward (292). A breakdown of new cases reveals that criminal cases were 76 percent misdemeanor, 14 percent felony, and 10 percent capias/show cause. Traffic cases were largely infractions (81%) and misdemeanors (18%). Hearings in the district courts decreased by 5.9 percent. A total of 47,806 cases were concluded.

New juvenile and domestic relations cases increased by 25 percent to 6,507 cases. Adult cases increased by half (from 2,231 to 3,354 cases) while juvenile cases increased by 7.3 percent. Juvenile cases consisted of 31 percent traffic, 25 percent delinquency, 37 percent custody, and 7 percent status cases. Adult cases were distributed 21 percent misdemeanors, 3 percent felony, 40 percent capias/show cause, and 36 percent civil. The largest increase in juvenile cases was recorded in Mecklenburg County (171 cases, a 24% increase). A 64.2 percent (475) increase in adult cases in Mecklenburg and a 48.6 percent increase (334) in Halifax accounted for over seventy percent of the total increase in new adult cases. Hearings rose by 9.1 percent leading to an average of 1.62 hearings per case. At year's end, a total of 6,381 cases had been concluded.

The 24 magistrates of the Tenth District reported 18,755 activity hours, 24,382 transactions and 20,583 processes issued. Although transactions decreased, processes issued remained at a rate of approximately 8 out of every 10 transactions. The magistrates received 13,902 telephone calls and 4,557 public inquiries. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 86 per 100 requests. The magistrates issued warrants for 6,100 misdemeanor charges (85%), 998 felonies (14%), and 67 (1%) summonses. Of the 6,390 bonds requested, 3,921 (61%) were issued. Unsecured bonds accounted for 54 percent of bonds issued. Additional magistrate activity included 309 subpoenas, 49 search warrants, 76 mental detention orders, 4,846 civil warrants, 3,858 committals and releases, and 305 prepayments for traffic offenses.

ELEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Eleventh Judicial District encompasses Amelia, Dinwiddie, Nottoway, and Powhatan counties and the City of Petersburg. The area's 1980 population of 99,790 is projected to increase 5 percent by 1990 (105,100). The City of Petersburg comprises nearly 40 percent of the circuit's population followed by Dinwiddie County which accounts for approximately 23 percent of the citizens within the circuit.

The two judgeships in the circuit court were held by Oliver A. Pollard, Jr., and Thomas V. Warren. District court judges included James F. D'Alton and Richard E. Lewis, Jr. in the general district court and Ben C. Campbell and L. L. Mason, Jr., in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. Judge Campbell's retirement in January, 1986 created a vacancy in the juvenile and domestic relations court which was filled by Larry G. Elder in February, 1986. The Eleventh District utilized 16.5 assistance days per judge, 4.7 below the state average.

The Eleventh Circuit experienced a net increase of 263 new cases in 1985. This 11.4 percent jump is accounted for by a 24 percent rise in criminal cases which comprised 56 percent of the commenced cases. The commenced case make-up was 18 percent law, 26 percent equity, 40 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. The percent of felony cases varied significantly from the state average of 29 percent. Cases concluded rose 8.9 percent. Within twelve months of initial filing, 77 percent of the civil concluded cases were disposed while 93 percent spent less than two years on the docket. Accounting for those cases concluded the first month, 78 percent of the criminal concluded cases received disposition within five months of initiation. Pending cases rose 40.3 percent to total 1,628 as of the end of 1985.

The general district court caseload grew by 14 percent (5,204). The new cases were distributed 18 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic and 28 percent civil. Criminal cases were up by 6.8 percent most of which can be explained by the 36 percent (280) rise in Nottoway and the 5 percent increase (223) in Petersburg. Traffic cases rose 15 percent, Dinwiddie accounting for 85 percent of the increase. The aggregate number of criminal cases was divided into 74 percent misdemeanor, 19 percent felony and 7 percent capias/show cause. Traffic infractions accounted for 79 percent of new traffic cases while misdemeanors encompassed 20 percent. Hearings in the general district court dropped nearly 13 percent, yielding an average of 0.98 hearings per case. Concluded cases totaled 41,361.

The juvenile and domestic relations court experienced a 4 percent rise in juvenile cases and a 33.6 percent jump in adult cases resulting in an overall increase of 18 percent. The caseload consisted of 47 percent new juvenile cases and 53 percent new adult cases. Nearly one-half (48%) of the new adult cases can be attributed to a 30 percent (284) increase in Petersburg's caseload. Juvenile cases dropped 14 percent (144) in Petersburg. However, the 4 percent overall growth was maintained by increases in Powhatan (59%) and Dinwiddie (84%). Overall, juvenile cases were composed of 25 percent traffic, 28 percent delinquency, 39 percent custody and 8 percent status cases. Adult cases were distributed among the categories of misdemeanors (36%), felony (6%), capias/show cause (21%), civil support (34%) and criminal support (3%). Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations court rose 4.8 percent with hearings per case averaging 1.65.

An additional magistrate was authorized to serve the Eleventh District in 1985. The 15 magistrates attended to 27,232 transactions and 22,280 processes. The 16,553 activity hours involved 19,542 telephone calls and 8,058 in-person inquiries. The 10,035 requested arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 87 percent (8,709). Of the warrants issued, felonies accounted for 19 percent (1,640), misdemeanors 73 percent (6,396) and summonses 8 percent (673). Bonds requested equaled 9,525, of which 5,985 were issued. Two-thirds (67%) of the bonds issued were unsecured, the remaining 33 percent representing secured bonds. Other processes in which magistrates engaged were 790 subpoenas, 117 search warrants, 328 mental detention orders, 361 civil warrants, 5,957 jail committals and releases, 22 prepayments for traffic infractions and 11 Class 4 misdemeanors.

TWELFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Chesterfield County and the City of Colonial Heights comprise the Twelfth Judicial Circuit. Rapid growth is expected in this area over the next five years. The 1980 Census yielded a population of 157,881. According to the Department of Planning and Budget the area grew by 21 percent between 1980 and 1985 (191,400). Another 20 percent growth rate is estimated between 1985 and 1990, bringing the population forecast up to 198,000 for 1990.

In 1985, the circuit court judges of the Twelfth were Ernest P. Gates, William N. Humphries, Jr., and John F. Daffron. The three judgeships of the general district court were held by John E. Dodson, William R. Shelton and Robert D. Laney. Judges Marvin L. Garner and John H. Thomas presided over the juvenile and domestic relations court. Circuit judge William N. Humphries is scheduled to retire in May, 1986. Judge Shelton of the general district court was elected to fill this vacancy. His seat in the general district court will be occupied by Timothy J. Hauler. During 1985, the district judges utilized an average of 23.7 assistance days per judge.

The circuit experienced a 5.4 percent increase in new cases during 1985. Criminal cases rose 6.2 percent while civil cases increased 5 percent. Seventy percent of the new cases were civil. The caseload composition of new cases in the circuit was 20 percent law, 49 percent equity, 20 percent felony, and 11 percent misdemeanor. Chesterfield County accounted for 93 percent of the civil cases and 90 percent of the criminal cases. Chesterfield's civil caseload grew by 6.7 percent (146) while its criminal caseload grew 5.6 percent (52). Colonial Heights experienced a 13.2 percent (26 cases) decrease in new civil cases and a 11.7 percent (12) increase in its criminal caseload. Concluded cases dropped by 140 cases, a 4.5 percent decline. Of the 2,016 civil cases concluded, nearly 70 percent were ended within one year of initial filing. Approximately one-quarter (24%) of the concluded criminal cases were disposed within one month. Within five months, three-quarters (77%) of the concluded cases reached disposition. Pending cases jumped 22 percent in 1985 to reach 3,327.

The general district courts recorded an increase of 3,571 new cases, a 7.5 percent increase over 1984. The new caseload was composed of 18 percent criminal, 60 percent traffic and 22 percent civil cases. The 9,257 criminal cases reflected a 2.9 percent (279) decrease over the 1984 figures. These cases were comprised of 64 percent misdemeanors, 26 percent felonies and 10 percent capias/show cause. Traffic cases increased by 8.9 percent (2,492 cases) most of which were infractions (45%) and misdemeanors (52%). Civil cases increased the most out of the three categories (13.2%). Hearings grew a slight 1 percent and contributed to 46,257 concluded cases. The average number of hearings per case was 1.09.

The juvenile and domestic relations court experienced a caseload expansion of nearly one-third (31%). Adult cases increased approximately fifty percent (49%) while juvenile cases increased nearly 22 percent. The juvenile cases were divided into 36 percent traffic, 34 percent delinquency, 28 percent custody/visitation and 2 percent status cases. Chesterfield reported an 18 percent (636) increase in juvenile cases and Colonial Heights reported a 50 percent (217) increase. Adult cases were distributed 24 percent misdemeanors, 6 percent felonies, 26 percent capias/show cause, 43 percent civil support, and less than one percent criminal support. Hearings decreased by 10.8 percent wherein 6,979 cases were concluded at a rate of 1.74 hearings per case.

The 11 magistrates of the Twelfth District reported 13,844 activity hours for 1985. The magistrates received 29,470 telelphone calls and 3,670 in-person inquiries. The 27,287 transactions culminated in 22,399 processes. Both transactions and processes increased by slightly over one percent. Of the 8,626 arrest warrants requested, 9 out of 10 were issued (7,960). Arrest warrants were issued for 1,490 felonies (19%), 5,318 misdemeanors (67%) and 280 summonses (14%). Fifty-eight percent (5,727) of the 9,926 requested bonds were issued. Unsecured bonds represented 62 percent (3,537) of total bonds issued. In addition to the above mentioned activities, the magistrates processed 501 subpoenas, 102 search warrants, 96 mental detention orders, 7,910 committals and releases and accepted 88 prepayments for traffic infractions.

THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Thirteenth Judicial Circuit serves the state capital — the City of Richmond. The city's population is steadily declining. The Department of Planning and Budget predicts that the 1980 population of 219,214 will decline to 198,000 by 1990. By the year 2000, only 194,000 persons were expected to reside in the city of Richmond.

The judges presiding in the circuit court in 1985 were Marvin F. Cole, James M. Lumpkin, Robert W. Duling, Thomas N. Nance, Willard I. Walker, James B. Wilkinson, Frank A. S. Wright, Melvin R. Hughes, Jr. and Robert L. Harris. Judge Harris replaced Judge Cole who was elected to the Court of Appeals in April 1985. At the close of 1985, the eight judges presiding over the general district court were Jose R. Davila, Walter W. Stout III, Thomas O. Jones, Edgar L. Turlington, Jr., Gregory L. Rupe, Ralph B. Robertson, William L. Wimbish and Lemuel E. DeBerry. Judge Harris served the general district court until April when he was elected to the circuit court. Judge Henry J. Schrieberg served in the general district court until his retirement in September 1985. Serving in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court were Alton E. Bryant, Jr., Willard H. Douglas, Jr., and Arlin F. Ruby. An average of 28.4 assistance days per district court judge were utilized in 1985.

The Thirteenth Circuit experienced an increase of 743 new cases in 1985 over 1984. This increase is almost identical to the growth reported in 1984. The rise of 646 new criminal cases accounts for 87 percent of the overall increase in new cases. The number of criminal cases was the second highest among the 31 circuits. Civil cases rose by a narrow 1.9 percent. The distribution of caseload was 35 percent law, 17 percent equity, 36 percent felony and 12 percent misdemeanor. The statewide distribution of law (23%), equity (31%), felony (29%), and misdemeanor (17%) is significantly different from that of the Thirteenth Circuit. Approximately three-fourths (72%) of the civil cases concluded were disposed within one year of filing. Ninety-four percent of the concluded criminal cases were ended within five months of the initial filing.

The 229,388 new cases in the Thirteenth General District ranked highest in the state despite the 19.8 percent decrease over the previous year. There was a 4.9 percent increase in criminal cases. The criminal caseload was composed of 72 percent misdemeanor, 16 percent felony, and 12 percent capias/show cause. These cases accounted for 11 percent of the total new cases. Traffic cases comprised 38 percent of the total new cases and were mostly infractions (85%). Civil cases accounted for the majority of new cases (51%) and also ranked highest in the state. Hearings declined by one-fourth and were distributed as 22 percent criminal, 37 percent traffic and 41 percent civil. Civil hearings ranked highest in the state, criminal hearings ranked second while traffic hearings ranked third.

The juvenile and domestic relations court reported a 27.5 percent decrease in new cases. Juvenile and adult cases declined by comparable percentages. The 5,675 juvenile cases accounted for 56 percent of the new cases. Juvenile cases were divided into 30 percent traffic, 33 percent delinquency, 30 percent custody and visitation issues, and 7 percent status offenses. The majority of adult cases consisted of misdemeanors (35%) and civil support (24%). Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations court dropped at a slightly lower rate than the decline in new cases. An average of 1.74 hearings were held per case and 9,957 cases were concluded.

The nine magistrates of the Thirteenth District recorded 16,829 activity hours. Seventy-four percent of all transactions resulted in the issuance of process, 9 percent below the statewide average. The 68,834 processes ranked third highest in the state. The magistrates received 31,000 telephone calls and 17,847 in-person inquiries. Of the 27,367 arrest warrants requested, 26,489 (97%) were issued. The warrants were composed of 17 percent felony, 81 percent misdemeanors and 2 percent summonses. One-third (10,524) of the 32,243 requested bonds were issued, two-thirds (6,475) of which were unsecured. Other processes handled by the magistrates were 207 search warrants, 10 mental detention orders, and 31,604 committals and releases.

FOURTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Fourteenth Judicial Circuit serves Henrico County. According to the 1980 Census, the county includes 180,735 residents. By 1990, a population of 205,300 is expected for this county.

The four judgeships in the Fourteenth Circuit were served by L. Paul Byrne, Buford M. Parson, Jr., Robert M. Wallace, and Joseph F. Spinella. In August of 1986, Judge Byrne will retire and James E. Kulp will fill this vacancy. Judges Donald R. Howren, George F. Tidey and H. Ratcliffe Turner presided over the general district court. In March, Judge Tidey filled the vacancy created by Judge Spinella's elevation to the circuit court. The juvenile and domestic relations court was served by Judges Robert J. Smith and J. Mercer White, Jr. The average of 33.3 assistance days per judge represents 12.1 days above the state average.

Commenced cases in the circuit court declined by a narrow 0.5 percent. This small percentage change is attributed to an inverse relationship between criminal and civil caseload change. Civil cases increased by 114 (5.7%) while criminal cases decreased by 93 (4%). The caseload distribution was 16 percent law, 33 percent equity, 30 percent felony, and 21 percent misdemeanor cases. Within two years of initial filing, 68 percent of the civil concluded cases were terminated. Civil cases comprised 48 percent of the total concluded cases. Criminal cases concluded represented the remaining 52 percent and were disposed at a rate of 83 percent within five months of initial filing. The comparatively large increase (11.6%) in concluded cases nearly compensated for the increase in new caseload, resulting in an increase of only 31 pending cases (0.7% increase) carried into 1986.

The general district court experienced a 2.4 percent decrease in new cases. The drop of 2,251 (6.4%) traffic cases accounted entirely for the total decrease in new cases. Increases of 13.8 percent (828) in criminal cases and 0.8 percent (115) in civil cases diminished the impact of the reduced traffic caseload. The distribution of cases was 13 percent criminal, 60 percent traffic, and 27 percent civil. Almost three-fourths (73%) of the criminal cases were misdemeanors while 20 percent were felonies. Traffic cases were primarily infractions (79%) and secondarily, misdemeanors (20%). The number of hearings dropped 12.2 percent. However, at 0.95 hearings per case, 55,244 cases were concluded which contributed to a reduction of 704 pending cases.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court rose 20.3 percent in 1985. The increase of 1,106 cases was 49 percent juvenile (541) and 51 percent adult (565) cases. Juvenile cases rose 17.6 percent over the previous year and adult cases rose 23.6 percent. New juvenile cases consisted of 30 percent traffic offenses, 26 percent delinquency problems, 40 percent custody and visitation concerns and 4 percent status issues. Over one-half (54%) of adult cases involved civil support matters. Juvenile and domestic relations court hearings increased 13.9 percent. The 11,915 hearings helped conclude 7,183 cases at a rate of 1.82 hearings per case.

The nine magistrates of the Fourteenth District logged 15,786 activity hours receiving 78,786 telephone calls and 7,436 in-person inquiries. Ninety-seven percent of the 7,763 arrest warrants requested were subsequently issued. Arrest warrants were classified as felonies (21%), misdemeanors (75%) and summonses (4%). Fifty-four percent (5,700) of the 10,509 requested bonds were issued. Of this number, 46 percent (2,620) were unsecured bonds and 54 percent (3,080) were secured bonds. The Fourteenth District also issued the second highest number of subpoenas (8,129) in the state in addition to 96 search warrants, 230 mental detention orders, 8,332 jail committals and releases, 3,730 prepayments for traffic infractions and 468 Class 4 misdemeanors.

FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Fifteenth Circuit and District serves a host of localities: the counties of Caroline, Essex, Hanover, King George, Northumberland, Richmond, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Westmoreland and Lancaster; and the city of Fredericksburg. This circuit is expected to grow considerably over the next fifteen years. The Department of Planning and Budget projected that the population will grow from 218,886 residents in 1980 to 324,200 in the year 2000. At this rate, the Fifteenth Circuit will be the third most highly populated circuit in Virginia.

The four circuit court judgeships were served by Dixon L. Foster, John A. Jamison, Richard H. C. Taylor and J. M. H. Willis, Jr. Presiding in the general district courts were Tristram T. Hyde, IV, James W. Haley, Jr., James Peyton Farmer, and J. L. Savage, Jr. The juvenile and domestic relations courts were served by Judges William J. Cox and Walther J. Fidler. An additional judgeship was authorized for 1986 which will be filled by J. Dean Lewis in July, 1986. The general district judges utilized 30.1 assistance days on the average, 8.9 days above the state average.

Both civil and criminal commenced cases in the circuit court decreased by 1.6 percent. Fifty-eight percent of the commenced cases were civil and 42 percent were criminal. Two-thirds of the new cases occurred in four jurisdictions: Hanover (21%), Spotsylvania (17%), Stafford (19%), and Fredericksburg (10%). Criminal cases rose sharply in Essex County where the increase of 71 cases meant a 118.3 percent caseload rise. A 74 percent increase in criminal cases (90) was reported in Fredericksburg. Concluded cases increased by 194, a 4.6 percent rise above the 1984 figure. Ninety percent of the 2,483 civil concluded cases reached disposition within 2 years of the initial filing. Eighty-seven percent of the 1,886 criminal concluded cases were terminated within five months of initial filing. Pending cases rose 9.4 percent, an increase of 355 cases.

New cases in the general district court rose by 6.6 percent. The greatest increase occurred in civil cases. The 18.8 percent (5,061) growth in civil cases accounted for 81 percent of the change in new cases (6,246). The make-up of new cases was 12 percent criminal, 56 percent traffic and 32 percent civil. The localities experiencing the greatest increase in new criminal cases were Fredericksburg with a 45.4 percent (702) growth, Spotsylvania with 26 percent (474) rise and King George registering 25.2 percent (165) more cases. Total traffic cases in the district increased by 1.6 percent. Localities reporting growth were Hanover, registering a 12.9 percent (1,552) rise, Essex with a 32.6 percent (989) rise and Spotsylvania with an 8.8 percent (692) increase. The 31.8 percent increase in new civil cases in Fredericksburg totaled 5,156 additional cases. This accounted for 87 percent of the increase in civil cases. The 84,942 hearings in the general district court resulted in 100,984 cases concluded.

In the juvenile and domestic relations court, adult cases climbed 26.9 percent, accounting for the overall increase in new cases of 9.9 percent. A decrease of 1.6 percent in juvenile cases buffered the impact of the sharp increase in adult cases. Ninety-five percent of juvenile cases were either traffic offenses (36%), delinquency problems (21%) or custody/visitation (38%) concerns. Adult cases were primarily civil support (39%) or capias/show cause (35%). Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations courts rose 2.6 percent and totaled 14,265. An average of 1.42 hearings were held per case.

In 1985, 25 magistrates served the Fifteenth District. In the 30,958 activity hours reported, 21,157 telephone calls and 3,232 public inquiries were handled. The volume of transactions decreased by 2.2 percent accompanied by a commensurate decrease of 2.3 percent in processes. Requested arrest warrants (14,342) were issued at a rate of 94 per 100 requests. Misdemeanor warrants accounted for 82 percent (11,019) of the issued warrants. The 6,457 bonds issued represented 58 percent of the bonds requested. Two-thirds (4,315) of the bonds were unsecured, one-third (2,412) were secured. Other processes included in the magistrate's activity hours were 899 subpoenas, 88 search warrants, 113 mental detention orders, 7,540 jail committals and releases, 268 prepayments for traffic infractions and 68 Class 4 misdemeanors.

SIXTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Albermarle, Culpeper, Fluvanna, Goochland, Greene, Louisa, Madison, and Orange as well as the city of Charlottesville comprise the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 Census registered a population of 194,069 for this circuit. By 1990, the population is anticipated to grow to 232,200, a 9.6 percent increase over 1985. By the close of the century, the circuit is predicted to include 262,100 residents, a 35 percent increase from the 1980 Census figures.

The four judgeships in the Sixteenth Circuit were served by Lloyd C. Sullenberger, E. Gerald Tremblay, F. Ward Harkrader, Jr., and Herbert A. Pickford III. Serving the general district court bench in 1985 were William A. Talley, Stephen H. Helvin, Franklin J. Jenkins and D. B. Marshall. Judge Marshall retired in October, 1985 and Paul M. Peatross, Jr. filled his position in the same month. The two judges serving the juvenile and domestic relations court were William D. Reams, Jr. and Ralph P. Zehler, Jr. The district judges utilized 22 assistance days each on the average.

The circuit recorded a 7 percent drop in commenced cases in 1985. Civil cases were down 4.7 percent and criminal cases decreased 9.7 percent. Reductions in new civil cases were noted in Greene (-31.4%), Orange (-11.2%), Louisa (-9.6%), Culpeper (-7.1%), Charlottesville (-5.9%), and Albemarle (-4.4%). Decreases in criminal cases were reported in the six counties of Culpeper (-26.5%), Fluvanna (-25.4%), Albermarle (-23%), Goochland (-16%), Charlottesville (-2.9%), and Louisa (-2.6%). The composition of the new cases was 22 percent law, 33 percent equity, 30 percent felony, and 15 percent misdemeanor. Cases concluded decreased slightly, by 3.7 percent. Of the 2,247 civil cases concluded, 70 percent were terminated within twelve months of filing while eighty-six percent were disposed of within twenty-four months of initiation. Eighty-four percent of the criminal concluded cases were disposed of five months or less after the initial filing. Pending cases increased by 388 or 14.3 percent from 1984. Juries impaneled increased 26.9 percent, a total of 46 additional juries.

New cases in the general district increased 8.1 percent due to traffic (10.3%) and civil (15.5%) case increases. Criminal cases dropped 4.5 percent and accounted for 21 percent of new cases. The majority (57%) of new cases were traffic and the remaining 22 percent were civil cases. Despite a decline of 10.5 percent (1,128) in Albermarle's traffic caseload, a rise in traffic cases district-wide was experienced due to the increases of 49 percent (3,403) in Charlottesville, 32 percent (958) in Louisa and 8.3 percent (389) in Culpeper. New criminal cases were classified as 78 percent misdemeanor, 9 percent felony and 13 percent capias/show cause. Eighty-five percent of all traffic cases involved infractions while 14 percent were misdemeanors. Hearings in the general district courts increased by 843 (1.1%) over 1984.

Increases in juvenile cases (2.9%) and adult cases (25.3%) in the juvenile and domestic relations court resulted in an increase in total new cases of 11.9 percent. The two localities reporting the largest rises in juvenile cases were Albermarle (9.7%, 95 cases) and Charlottesville (20.5%, 169 cases). The number of adult cases grew by 78 percent (57) in Madison, 53 percent (271) in Albermarle, 49 percent (335) in Charlottesville and 22 percent (56) in Culpeper. Caseload declines of 33 percent (114) in Orange and 14.7 percent (22) in Goochland aided in reducing the percent increase in adult cases district-wide. Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations court declined by 9.6 percent.

The 22 magistrates of the Sixteenth District recorded 21,563 activity hours wherein 20,091 telephone calls and 10,652 in-person inquiries were addressed. Transactions decreased by 4.3 percent while processes issued declined by 0.4 percent. Ninety-two percent of the transactions resulted in processes being issued. Nine of every 10 arrest warrants were issued for a total of 19,290. The distribution of warrants was 12 percent felony, 85 percent misdemeanor and 3 percent summonses. Seventy-eight percent (8,014) of the bonds requested were granted. Three-fourths (6,026) of the bonds were unsecured. Other magistrate activity involved 209 subpoenas, 108 search warrants, 189 mental detention orders, 1,750 civil warrants, 7,037 jail committals and releases, 1,054 prepayments for traffic infractions and 371 Class 4 misdemeanors.

SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Arlington County is the sole locality in the Seventeenth Circuit. The U.S. Bureau of the Census in 1980 reported a population of 152,599 for the county. The Department of Planning and Budget predicts the population will decrease to 148,000 in 1990 and experience a zero percentage growth rate between 1900 and the year 2000.

The four judgeships in the Seventeenth Circuit were held by Paul D. Brown, William L. Winston, Thomas R. Monroe, and Benjamin N. A. Kendrick. Judge Brown retired in September, 1985 and was replaced by Judge Paul F. Sheridan. The general district court judges in 1985 were Francis Everett Thomas, Jr., Joseph C. Gwaltney, and Eleanor S. Dobson. In the juvenile and domestic relations court, Andrew B. Ferrari and Berton V. Kramer presided. The average number of assistance days per judge was 16.4, 4.8 days below the statewide average.

Commenced cases in the circuit court declined 4.1 percent over the 1984 figures. The 6.1 percent increase in civil cases reflect the 13.1 percent rise in cases classified as "other law". Equity cases increased by 2.5 percent (8 cases). Other felony cases (i.e., those other than class 1 and 2) declined over the previous year (15.7%, 236). Criminal misdemeanor cases dropped by 29.7 percent. The total commenced caseload was comprised of 26 percent law, 31 percent equity, 39 percent felony and 4 percent misdemeanor cases. This distribution was heavily weighted with felony cases compared to the state average (29%). The number of cases concluded increased by 111 (7.5%). Seventy-two percent of the civil concluded cases were closed within two years of the initial filing. Sixty-five percent of the 1,609 criminal concluded cases were terminated within five months of the initial filing.

Arlington County's general district court experienced a substantial increase (24.2%) in new cases. Traffic cases nearly increased by half (47.5%), civil cases dropped 33.6 percent and criminal cases rose 21.1 percent. The drop in civil cases of 5,852 cases helped to reduce the impact of increases in new criminal and traffic cases. The new cases were classified as 9 percent criminal, 77 percent traffic and 14 percent civil. Criminal case make-up was 74 percent misdemeanors, 22 percent felony and 4 percent capias/show cause. Ninety-five percent of the traffic cases were infractions. Hearings in the general district court dropped 2.9 percent yielding an average of 0.97 hearings per new case.

The caseload of the juvenile and domestic relations court jumped 1.7 percent to 3,010 new cases, with an increase of 59 (2.5%) new juvenile cases in 1985. Adult cases dropped by 8. A breakdown of the juvenile caseload indicates that 40 percent were traffic offenses, 30 percent were delinquency cases, 18 percent were custody/visitation issues, and 12 percent concerned status offenses. Misdemeanor cases and civil support cases accounted for 83 percent of the adult caseload. Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations court decreased 10.1 percent while hearings per case averaged 3.0. Adult hearings per case were 4.57, a significant 2.71 above the state average of 1.86.

The eight magistrates of Arlington County recorded 9,928 activity hours wherein they answered 8,533 telephone calls and responded to 9,047 in-person inquiries. Transactions dropped by a narrow 0.8 percent and processes decreased slightly over one percent (1.3%). Ninety-nine percent of the arrest warrants requested were issued. The composition of warrants issued was 19 percent (1,699) felony, 66 percent (6,076) misdemeanor and 15 percent (1,371) summonses. Seven of every ten bonds requested were issued resulting in a total of 7,401 bonds. These bonds are distributed as follows: 51 percent (3,807) unsecured and 49 percent (3,594) secured. In addition to the above mentioned duties, the magistrates of the Seventeenth District also processed 109 search warrants, 195 mental detention orders, 10,144 jail committals and releases, and accepted prepayments for 976 traffic infractions and 5 Class 4 misdemeanors.

EIGHTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The City of Alexandria is served by the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 Census population figure of the city was 103,217. According to Department of Planning and Budget estimates, the 1985 population was approximately 104,200 and is anticipated to increase to 106,300 by the year 2000.

The Eighteenth Circuit was served in 1985 by Donald Hall Kent, Donald M. Haddock and Alfred D. Swersky. Judge Swersky was elected to the bench in June to complete the term of the late Judge Albert H. Grenadier who died in March, 1985. Judges Robert T. S. Colby and D. F. O'Flaherty continued to serve the general district court bench. Judge Joseph L. Peters completed his eighth year of service in the juvenile and domestic relations court. An average of 22.5 assistance days per judge were utilized in the Eighteenth District.

The circuit court caseload decreased by 329 commenced cases for an 8.5 percent decline. The decline in caseload was due to a 21.6 decrease in criminal cases. There were 307 fewer felony cases and 125 fewer misdemeanor cases. Civil cases rose 5.5 percent (103 cases) over 1984. Equity cases accounted for 90 percent of this increase. Overall, caseload composition was 23 percent law, 33 percent equity, 31 percent felony, and 13 percent misdemeanors. This was nearly equivalent to the statewide distribution of 23 percent law, 31 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor. Concluded cases dropped 4.8 percent in 1985. Of the 3,445 cases concluded, 54 percent were civil and 46 percent were criminal. Eighty-five percent of the civil cases concluded received disposition within two years of the initial filing. Only 7 percent of the criminal cases concluded were on the docket more than five months from the initial filing. Pending cases rose 4.4 percent, an increase of 119 cases.

The general district court saw an additional 566 cases filed in 1985 in comparison with the previous year. Overall, the court's caseload increased 1.5 percent. Criminal cases increased by 5.8 percent, traffic cases decreased a substantial 8.8 percent, and civil cases increased by a significant 28.5 percent. The distribution of the new cases was 10 percent criminal, 60 percent traffic and 30 percent civil. Three-fourths of the criminal cases were misdemeanors and 88 percent of the traffic cases were infractions. Hearings in the Eighteenth District declined 6.5 percent while concluded cases totaled 42,182. There were 1.16 hearings held per new case.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court jumped 79.4 percent. Juvenile cases increased by 24.1 percent while domestic relations cases rose by 184 percent. (Although precise data is not available, it is estimated that between 15 and 50 percent of this increase is due to changes in reporting capias/show cause actions). Juvenile cases accounted for 45 percent of the new cases and adult cases comprised the remaining 56 percent. Juvenile cases were 32 percent traffic, 31 percent delinquency, 36 percent custody/visitation and less than one percent status. Three-fourths of the adult cases were either civil support cases (30%) or capias/show cause proceedings (44%). Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations court decreased 3.5 percent. There were 1.71 hearings held per new juvenile case.

The six magistrates of the Eighteenth District answered 14,443 telephone calls and responded to 9,977 in-person inquiries during their 9,197 activity hours. Transactions increased by 3.7 percent while processes issued rose by 3.9 percent. The 10,470 requested arrest warrants resulted in 919 felony warrants (9% of total warrants issued), 3,549 (35%) misdemeanor warrants, and 5,563 (56%) summonses. Bonds were issued at a rate of six of every ten requested. The 2,828 unsecured bonds accounted for 72 percent of the total number of bonds issued (3,951). Twenty-eight percent of the bonds were secured (1,123). Other magistrate activity included 108 search warrants, 71 mental detention orders, 5,560 committals and releases, 120 prepayments for traffic infractions and one Class 4 misdemeanor.

NINETEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Nineteenth Judicial Circuit includes Fairfax County and the cities of Fairfax and Falls Church. This circuit is the most highly populated circuit in the state. The population as of the 1980 Census was 625,806 and is predicted to increase 37 percent by the year 2000. This would increase the circuit's population to 860,200 residents.

Eleven judges serve the circuit court, the largest number statewide. These judges are F. Bruce Bach, Lewis H. Griffith, Richard J. Jamborsky, Barnard F. Jennings, Thomas J. Middleton, Jr., Jack B. Stevens, J. Howe Brown, Jr., William G. Plummer, Johanna L. Fitzpatrick, Quinlan H. Hancock and Thomas A. Fortkort. Judge Fortkort who had served previously on the juvenile and domestic relations bench in the 19th District replaced Barbara M. Keenan who was elected to the Court of Appeals in January, 1985. Presiding in the general district court were judges G. William Hammer, Richard T. Horan, Robert M. Hurst, Stewart P. Davis, Frank B. Perry III, Thomas J. Rothrock, J. Conrad Waters, Jr., and Michael P. McWeeny. Judge Hammer retired in July, 1985 and was replaced by Judge McWeeny. Hearing the juvenile and domestic relations cases were Judges Jane Pritchard Delbridge, Arnold B. Kassabian, Michael J. Valentine, Gaylord L. Finch, Jr. and James W. Fourqurean. Judge Fourqurean replaced Judge Fortkort. The district judges utilized an average of 20.3 assistance days.

The circuit court experienced a narrow decline of 0.7 percent in commenced cases. Civil cases increased by 3.6 percent to reach 10,001 cases. This was the highest civil caseload in the state. Although the criminal caseload dropped 9 percent, the 4,554 commenced cases ranked third highest in the state. The composition of commenced cases was 28 percent law, 41 percent equity, 18 percent felony, and 13 percent misdemeanor. This was more heavily weighted in equity cases compared to the statewide average of 31 percent. The number of cases concluded dropped 6.8 percent Within two years after the initial filing, 80 percent of the concluded civil cases were closed. Eighty-three percent of the criminal concluded cases were disposed of within five months of the initial filing. Pending cases rose 9.6 percent in 1985 to reach 15,633. While the number of juries impaneled increased only slightly (0.6%), the average number of juries per judge (44) was 10 more than the statewide average (34).

The 228,837 new cases in the general district court ranked the Nineteenth as second highest in the state. These cases were composed of 9 percent criminal, 71 percent traffic, and 19 percent civil. Traffic cases in the Nineteenth District ranked highest in the state, civil cases ranked third while criminal cases ranked fourth. Hearings in the general district expanded by 2,392, a 1.2 percent increase over 1984. This yielded an average of 0.87 hearings held per new case.

The juvenile and domestic relations court of the Nineteenth District ranked highest statewide both in the number of new cases (20,506) and hearings held (33,530). The overall increase in new cases (2.9%) was due to the rise in juvenile cases (7.8%). The 8.8 percent decrease in adult cases reduced the impact of the growth in juvenile cases. Both Fairfax County and Falls Church reported increases in juvenile cases, the county by 7.7 percent (1,064) and Falls Church by 13.6 percent (32). Adult cases in Fairfax County dropped by 9.1 percent (523). The 33,530 hearings resulted in 1.64 hearings being held per case.

The highest volume of processes issued statewide was reported in the Nineteenth District. The 31 magistrates logged 42,518 activity hours in which they answered 98,568 telephone calls, responded to 23,560 in-person inquiries, and issued 100,523 processes in response to 119,436 requests. Transactions were up by 2.4 percent while processes increased 3.7 percent. Ninety-five percent of the arrest warrants requested were issued. The majority (76%) of arrest warrants were for misdemeanor offenses. The 38,848 requested bonds were granted at a rate of 56 percent (21,802). Two-thirds (14,434) of the bonds were unsecured. Other magistrate services included the issuance of 214 subpoenas, 127 search warrants, 502 mental detention orders, and 40,859 committals and releases. The magistrates also accepted prepayment for 7,596 traffic infractions and 1,168 Class 4 misdemeanors.

TWENTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Northern Virginia counties of Fauquier, Loudoun and Rappahannock are served by the Twentieth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 Census population of this area was 99,409. An increased growth of 17 percent is forecasted between 1985 and 1990 for a population of 133,100 residents. Growth is expected to continue into the year 2000, when the population is expected to reach 160,400 residents.

Circuit court judges presiding in 1985 were Thomas D. Horne, Carleton Penn and William S. Robertson. Judges Archibald M. Aiken and John Alexander heard cases in the general district court. Judge Alexander retired in February, 1986 and was succeeded by Charles B. Foley. Juvenile and domestic relations court judges were A. Burke Hertz and John D. Ryan. Judge Ryan also retired in February and was replaced by Jean Harrison Clements. An average of 13.7 assistance days per district judge were utilized in 1985.

The Twentieth Circuit experienced a 13.8 percent increase in commenced cases in 1985. An increase of 31.4 percent was recorded in criminal cases while civil cases rose by 3.5 percent. Fifty-seven percent of the new cases were civil cases. Of the 53 additional civil cases in 1985, 74 percent (39) were equity cases. Criminal cases increased by 274 cases, 81 percent of which were felonies. Of the 2,127 cases that were concluded, 59 percent were civil and 41 percent were criminal cases. Of the 1,246 civil cases concluded, 88 percent reached conclusion within two years of filing. Sixty-three percent of concluded criminal cases received disposition within five months. Total concluded cases (2,127) declined 9.8 percent from the 1984 figure. Pending cases increased by nearly one-third (32.1%) to reach 2,327 cases. The number of juries impaneled increased from 80 in 1984 to 91 in 1985. However, the number of juries per judge (30) was below the statewide average of 34.

The general district courts of the Twentieth District experienced significant increases in all new case classifications. The 5,069 growth in new cases was a 16.1 percent jump over 1984. Criminal cases rose 23.7 percent. Traffic cases increased by 10.4 percent, solely accounted for in Loudoun County's caseload increase of 22.1 percent (2,761). Civil caseloads increased in all three counties. Fauquier recorded a 51.5 percent (820) increase, Loudoun recorded a 30.3 percent (919) increase and Rappahannock completed the picture with a 41.3 percent (52) increase in civil caseload. The new criminal cases were primarily misdemeanors (81%). Eighty-six percent of traffic cases were infractions. Hearings in the general district court declined by 1.8 percent in 1985. Judges held an average of 0.90 hearings per case and continued cases at a rate of 24 continuances per 100 transactions on the docket. There were 35,955 cases concluded of which 69 percent involved traffic matters.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased by 2.7 percent from 1984. Juvenile cases, which represented 65 percent of the caseload, grew by 4.7 percent while adult cases dropped by less than one percent. Of the 2,675 new juvenile cases, 45 percent were traffic cases, 32 percent involved delinquency, 20 percent concerned custody issues, and three percent were status offenses. The domestic relations caseload was composed of 22 percent misdemeanors, 4 percent felonies, 34 percent capias/show cause actions, 34 percent civil support matters, and 5 percent criminal support cases. Hearings held increased by 7 percent in 1985 yielding an average of 1.90 hearings per new case. The continuance rate for juvenile and domestic relations cases was 0.46.

Transactions in the magistrate system of the Twentieth District decreased by 4.1 percent and processes decreased 0.8 percent. The nine magistrates answered 5,001 telephone calls and handled 1,122 in-person inquiries in the 7,967 reported activity hours. Ninety-six percent (5,465) of the 5,717 requests for arrest warrants were issued. The composition of the arrest warrants were 12 percent felony, 76 percent misdemeanor, and 12 percent summonses. Eighty percent (1,959) of the bonds issued were unsecured and 20 percent (512) were secured. These bonds represented 63 percent of the 3,912 bonds requested. Additional transactions processed by the 9 magistrates were 83 subpoenas, 48 search warrants, 70 mental detention orders, one civil warrant, 4,289 jail committals and releases, and prepayment of 58 traffic infractions and 14 Class 4 misdemeanors.

TWENTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Henry and Patrick and the City of Martinsville are the localities comprising the Twenty-First Judicial Circuit. The 1980 Census listed 93,450 residents. By the year 2000, the population is expected to reach 99,300, a six percent rise from 1980.

The two circuit court judgeships were served by Frank I. Richardson, Jr. and Kenneth M. Covington. Judges J. Frank Greenwalt, Jr. and Charles M. Stone presided in the general district court while Junius P. Warren served the juvenile and domestic relations court. An average of 10.7 assistance days per judge were utilized in the district courts in 1985. This was well below the statewide average of 21.2 days.

Commenced cases in the circuit increased by 229 from 1984. An overall rise in criminal cases (242 or 16.3 percent) was the key component in the growth of new cases and was only partially diminished by a 1.2 percent decrease (13) in civil cases. The circuit's caseload composition was 14 percent law, 25 percent equity, 33 percent felony and 8 percent misdemeanor. Interestingly, criminal cases increased both in Henry County (68.5%, 371 cases) and Patrick County (24.2%, 46 cases) but decreased by 23.2 percent (175 cases) in Martinsville. Concluded cases increased by 7.5 percent. Eighty-nine percent of these circuit's civil cases were concluded within two years of filing. Approximately three-fourths (73.3%) of the criminal concluded cases spent thirty days or less on the docket. Within five months of initial filing, 91 percent (1,528) of the criminal concluded cases reached disposition. Pending cases increased by 17 percent, numbering 291 cases. The number of juries impaneled jumped 26 percent in 1985 yielding an average of 34 juries per judge. This equaled the statewide average for circuit court judges.

In 1985, the general district court's caseload increased by 13.6 percent and hearings decreased by a commensurate 13.8 percent. The 23,355 new cases were comprised of 19 percent criminal (4,518), 32 percent traffic (4,518), and 49 percent civil (11,412). The ten percent increase in criminal cases was due to a 13 percent increase (238) in Henry, a 20 percent increase (118) in Patrick, and a 3 percent increase (53) in Martinsville. Traffic cases in Henry County dropped 15 percent (697) as well as in Martinsville where the decline was slightly over 8 percent (154). A 2 percent increase (33) in traffic cases was reported in Patrick. The jump in civil cases district-wide (39%) was the result of increases in each of the localities. Martinsville reported a 38 percent growth (1,139) in civil cases, Henry registered a 39 percent (1,881) rise and in Patrick County the caseload expanded by 42 percent (180).

The juvenile and domestic relations court recorded 4,318 new cases in 1985. This 11 percent increase over 1984 was the result of a 7.6 percent increase in juvenile cases as well as a 14.5 percent rise in adult cases. The increase in juvenile cases was most strongly felt in Henry County where a 12.7 percent increase (128) was noted. Martinsville's 45.9 percent increase (221) in adult cases accounted for 79 percent of the overall increase in adult cases. Adult cases rose by 6.7 percent (87) in Henry County and decreased by 17.2 percent (28) in Patrick County. Juvenile cases were 48 percent custody/visitation cases, 22 percent traffic offenses, 25 percent delinquency matters, and 5 percent status offenses. Adult cases were primarily civil support (44%). Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased by 36.7 percent in 1985.

The nine magistrates of the Twenth-First District logged 11,278 activity hours in 1985. During this time 25,805 telephone calls were answered and 7,961 public inquiries were addressed. Overall, transactions increased by 2.7 percent and processes coincided with a 2.9 percent increase. Ninety-five percent of the requested arrest warrants were issued. The majority (83%) of the arrest warrants were for misdemeanor offenses. Felony warrants accounted for 14 percent of the issued warrants and summonses were 3 percent. Sixty-five percent of the requested bonds were granted. Unsecured bonds numbered 1,047 (43%) and secured bonds represented 57 percent (1,324). The magistrates activity hours were also occupied by the following processes: 5,299 subpoenas, 40 search warrants, 13 mental detention orders, 7,659 civil warrants, 3,577 jail committals and releases, 33 traffic infraction prepayments and 16 Class 4 misdemeanor prepayments.

TWENTY-SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Second Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Pittsylvania and Franklin and the City of Danville. The Department of Planning and Budget estimates that the population in the year 2000 will be 166,000, representing a nine percent increase over 1985.

The three circuit court judges presiding in 1985 were Beverly A. Davis III, Samuel M. Hairston and James F. Ingram. The general district court was served by Judges T. Ryland Dodson and William N. Alexander, II. In the juvenile and domestic relations court, Judges Spiros B. Skenderis and Robert F. Ward continued to serve in 1985. An average of 9.9 assistance days per judge were utilized by the district judges in 1985. This was well below the state average of 21.2 days per judge.

A decline of 12.1 percent in commenced cases in the circuit court was due primarily to a 20.6 percent decline in criminal cases. All localities reported decreased criminal caseloads. Pittsylvania reported the greatest decline in criminal cases (27.4% or 301 cases). Danville's criminal caseload dropped 16.7 percent (161) while Franklin County's fell 15 percent (99). The 1.3 percent civil case increase was unevenly distributed among the localities. Franklin County reported a 4.6 percent (21) decline in civil cases contrasted with Pittsylvania County's increase of 4.7 percent (14). The circuit's caseload composition was 16 percent law, 28 percent equity, 39 percent felony, and 17 percent misdemeanor. Concluded cases decreased by 16.5 percent (720 cases). Within two years after the initial filing, 93 percent of the civil concluded cases reached disposition. Ninety-two percent of the criminal concluded cases were terminated within five months. Pending cases rose 15.5 percent, an increase of 244 cases in 1985. Although the number of juries impaneled declined seven percent, the juries per judge average was higher in the Twenty-Second than it was statewide.

The Twenty-Second general district courts experienced an 11.7 percent increase in new cases in 1985. The 37,224 new cases were 23 percent criminal, 47 percent traffic, and 30 percent civil. New criminal cases rose 12.5 percent in the district. Pittsylvania reported a 28.4 percent (479) increase in criminal cases while Danville reported a 16 percent (596) increase and Franklin County reported a 4.7 percent (109) decrease. Traffic cases increased by 3.7 percent. Civil cases rose 25.9 percent of which 45 percent was concentrated in Danville (16.2% increase, 1,036 cases). Pittsylvania's civil caseload increased by 57.2 percent (749) while Franklin's caseload accounted for an increase of 532 cases, a 43 percent increase over the county's 1984 caseload. Hearings in the general district court decreased by 6.6 percent.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased by nearly one-third from 1984. Juvenile cases rose by 9.8 percent. The caseload rise was concentrated in Pittsylvania County where an increase of 208 juvenile cases accounted for 70 percent of the total increase. Adult cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court in 1985 increased substantially (60.3%). Juvenile cases were distributed as traffic (24%), delinquency (27%), custody/visitation (47%), and status (2%). Adult cases were primarily civil support (41%), accompanied by misdemeanors (28%), capias/show cause (25%), felony (4%), and criminal support (2%). Hearings in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased by 3.7 percent. There were 1.86 hearings held per case.

The 11 magistrates of the Twenty-Second District attended to 8,557 public inquiries and responded to 18,245 telephone calls during their 18,585 activity hours. Transactions were down 7.7 percent from 1984 while processes issued rose 2.3 percent. Ninety-two percent of the arrest warrants requested were issued. Misdemeanor warrants numbered 7,101 (81%), felony warrants were 1,148 (13%) and the remaining amount was accounted for by the 550 summonses (6%). One-half of the bonds requested were granted. One-third (1,759) of these bonds were secured. The magistrates also processed 1,112 subpoenas, 64 search warrants, 182 mental detention orders, 8,351 civil warrants, 7,931 committals and releases, and prepayment for 28 traffic infractions and 55 Class 4 misdemeanors in 1985.

TWENTY-THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The cities of Roanoke and Salem and Roanoke County comprise the Twenty-Third Judicial Circuit. According to the 1980 Census, the circuit served 197,123 residents. By the year 2000, the anticipated population of the circuit is 225,100, a 14 percent rise over the 1980 Census figure.

The judges presiding in the circuit court in 1985 were Ernest W. Ballou, Jack B. Coulter, Kenneth E. Trabue, Roy B. Willett, and G. O. Clemens. Judges Willett and Clemens filled the vacancies created by the death of Frederick L. Hoback on January 2, 1985 and the election of Lawrence L. Koontz, Jr. to the Court of Appeals. Serving the general district court were Judges James P. Brice, George W. Harris, Julian H. Raney, Jr., Edward S. Kidd, Jr., and John L. Apostolou. Judges Harris and Apostolou filled the vacancies created by the retirement of Arthur B. Crush, Jr. and the election of Judge Clemens to the circuit bench. The juvenile and domestic relations court judges were James W. Flippen, Frederick L. Hoback, Jr. and Philip Trompeter. The district judges utilized an average of 37.4 assistance days each in 1985, the second highest per judge usage of assistance in the state.

Commenced cases in the Twenty-Third Circuit dropped 8.3 percent or 523 cases. Much of the decline is due to a drop in caseload in the City of Roanoke. The decline in civil caseload was the result of decreases of 6.2 percent in the City of Roanoke and 3.9 percent in Roanoke County. Criminal cases fell 12.1 percent while civil cases declined 4.4 percent. The distribution of caseload was 20 percent law, 21 percent equity, 36 percent felony, and 13 percent misdemeanor. Compared to the statewide distribution, the circuit was more heavily weighted with felony cases. Following the trend in commenced cases, the number of concluded cases decreased by 5.8 percent. Of the civil cases concluded, 80 percent were disposed within two years after initial filing. Eighty-six percent of the criminal concluded cases reached termination within five months of initiation. An increase of 3.7 percent in pending cases was reported in the Twenty-Third Circuit in 1985. The number of juries impaneled fell 27 percent from 115 in 1984 to 84 in 1985. This resulted in an average of 17 juries per judge, considerably fewer than the statewide average of 34. In fact, the Twenty-Third ranked 30th among the 31 circuits in juries per judge.

New cases in the general district court ranked seventh highest in the state and increased by 4.8 percent in 1985. The composition of the new cases was 22 percent criminal, 42 percent traffic, and 36 percent civil. The distribution of criminal cases was 74 percent misdemeanors, 11 percent felonies and 15 percent capias/show cause. Decreases in traffic cases of 1.7 percent were largely the result of a 3.4 percent decrease in the City of Roanoke. The 12.3 percent increase in civil cases was attributed to a 11.6 percent increase in the City of Roanoke. Hearings in the general district court fell 6.3 percent in 1985.

A decline in new cases was noted in the juvenile and domestic relations court in both juvenile (1.1%) and adult (3.7%) cases. Juvenile cases were composed of 34 percent traffic, 36 percent delinquency, 27 percent custody/visitation and 3 percent status cases. Adult cases dropped by 3.7 percent due to a 40.2 percent (256) drop in the county's caseload. The caseload distribution of adult cases was 39 percent misdemeanor, 6 percent felony, 3 percent capias/show cause, 41 percent civil support and 11 percent criminal support. An increase in hearings of 4.7 percent was noted in 1985.

The Twenty-Third District's 11 magistrates logged 18,170 activity hours in which 50,696 of the 61,382 transactions resulted in the issuance of process. The 11.4 percent decrease in processes was commensurate with the 12.4 percent decrease in transactions. Ninety percent of the arrest warrants requested were issued. These warrants were composed of 12 percent felony, 80 percent misdemeanor and 8 percent summonses. The 7,892 bonds issued represent 48 percent of the number requested. Sixty-seven percent of the bonds were unsecured. Other activities of the Twenty-Third District magistrates included 1,292 subpoenas, 168 search warrants, 278 mental detention orders, 22,925 committals and releases, prepayments for 57 traffic infractions and 35 Class 4 misdemeanors.

TWENTY-FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Fourth Judicial Circuit includes the counties of Amherst, Bedford, Campbell, and Nelson as well as the cities of Bedford and Lynchburg. The 1980 population of this area was 194,411 residents. A 21 percent increase in population is expected by the year 2000.

Four circuit court judgeships are authorized for the Twenty-Fourth. Serving are J. Samuel Johnston, Jr., Robert C. Goad, William W. Sweeney, and Richard S. Miller. Judge Miller replaced Norman K. Moon who was elected to the Court of Appeals on January 1, 1985. The general district courts are also authorized four judgeships and are served by James S. Farmer, Jesse C. Crumbley III, Coy M. Kiser, Jr., and Paul Whitehead, Jr. Judge Whitehead replaced Judge Miller who was elected to the circuit court bench. Juvenile and domestic relations cases continued to be handled by Judges Lawrence Janow, W. Raymond Minnix, and Dale H. Harris. The district court judges used 109.3 substitute and retired, recalled judge days in 1985, an average of 15.8 days per FTE judge. This was below the statewide average of 21.2 days per judge.

The caseload of the circuit courts increased only slightly (0.7%) in 1985. Civil cases commenced grew by 2.4 percent while criminal cases declined by 0.9 percent. Total caseload increased in Amherst (22%), Campbell (11%), and Bedford (10%). The caseload distribution of the Twenty-Fourth was 21 percent law, 29 percent equity, 33 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. The circuits caseload thus had a higher percentage of felony cases than did circuits statewide. There was a 5.3 percent decline in cases concluded in 1985 contributing to a 21 percent increase in pending cases at year's end. However, the Twenty-Fourth still ranked 30th among the 31 circuits in the number of pending cases per judge. The number of juries impaneled dropped from 186 in 1984 to 163 in 1985. The average number of juries per judge was 41, well above the statewide average of 34.

The number of new cases in the general district courts increased by 10.4 percent due in large part to a 57 percent increase in new civil cases. New criminal cases rose by 10 percent while the number of traffic cases fell by 7 percent. Total cases increased in each of the localities in the district, ranging from 18 percent in Lynchburg to less than 1 percent in Bedford. Of the 59,819 new cases in the Twenty-Fourth, 21 percent were criminal, 48 percent were traffic, and 31 percent were civil cases. Thus, the distribution contained a lower percentage of traffic cases than did the general district courts statewide. Misdemeanors comprised a large part (73%) of the criminal caseload while 10 percent were felonies. More than two-thirds of the traffic cases were infractions while 29 percent were misdemeanors. Statewide, almost 83 percent of the traffic caseload is made up of infractions.

Juvenile and domestic relations cases increased almost 21 percent in 1985 due largely to a 42 percent rise in adult cases. Juvenile cases, which accounted for almost 57 percent of the juvenile and domestic relations caseload, increased by 8.2 percent. Of the 5,492 juvenile cases, 37 percent concerned custody/visitation issues while 28 percent were traffic cases, 28 percent were delinquency cases, and 7 percent involved status offenses. Civil support matters accounted for 43 percent of the domestic relations caseload while misdemeanor cases represented 25 percent. The number of juvenile and domestic relations hearings held increased 5.2 percent in 1985 yielding an average of 6,445 hearings per judge. This was greater than the average for juvenile and domestic relations judges statewide.

The 19 magistrates in the Twenty-Fourth District logged 27,424 hours of activity in 1985, receiving 26,675 phone calls and 7,089 in-person inquiries. Both the number of transactions and processes issued declined, 2.1 percent and 2.7 percent respectively. Four-fifths of the requests for process were granted. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 81 percent of those requested. Of the 12,974 arrest warrants issued, 72 percent were for misdemeanors, 17 percent were summonses while 11 percent were for felonies. There were 7,326 bonds issued of which 85 percent were unsecured. The magistrates also issued 111 search warrants, 105 mental detention orders, 19 civil warrants, 3,467 subpoenas, and processed 3,867 committals to and releases from jail. They also accepted prepayment for 72 traffic infractions and 52 Class 4 misdemeanors.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Fifth Circuit encompasses the counties of Alleghany, Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Craig, Highland, and Rockbridge as well as the cities of Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Covington, Lexington, Staunton, and Waynesboro. The 1980 census reported that this area contained 187,295 residents. Department of Planning and Budget estimates indicate that the population will grow by another 25,705 persons by the year 2000.

Four judgeships are authorized for the Twenty-Fifth Circuit. Serving in 1985 were judges Rudolph Bumgardner III, Thomas H. Wood, Duncan M. Byrd, Jr. and George E. Honts III. Four judgeships also are authorized for the general district courts with additional assistance from the Twenty-Fourth District. Serving are Joseph E. Hess, Elmer C. Westerman, Jr., William E. Carson, Sr., and Talmage N. Cooley. Judges Robert S. Culpepper, John B. Curry, II, and Harrison May continued to serve the juvenile and domestic relations courts. The district court judges in the Twenty-Fifth used 124 substitute and retired, recalled judge days in 1985, an average of 18 days per judge. The statewide average was 21.2 days per judge.

The caseloads of the circuit courts increased slightly (1.2%) in 1985. Criminal cases commenced increased by 5.8 percent while civil cases commenced declined by 2.8 percent. Six of the 11 courts in this circuit reported increases in caseload. The circuit caseload was distributed 19 percent law, 32 percent equity, 31 percent felony, and 17 percent misdemeanor. Thus, the Twenty-Fifth had a somewhat greater percentage of criminal cases (particularly felony) than did circuit courts statewide. The number of cases concluded decreased slightly (1.1%) in 1985 although cases concluded exceeded the number of cases commenced. The number of juries impaneled remained constant from 1984 to 1985 (103 juries) and averaged 26 juries per judge.

The caseload of the general district courts increased by almost three percent in 1985 with civil cases rising 15.5 percent and new traffic cases increasing 1.3 percent. New criminal cases declined marginally (-0.6%). The judges in the Twenty-Fifth averaged 15,061 new cases each, ranking 29th among the districts. Of the 66,264 new cases initiated in 1985, 16 percent were criminal cases while 68 percent were traffic, and 16 percent involved civil matters. Misdemeanors accounted for 82 percent of the 10,500 new criminal cases while felonies represented 11 percent. In traffic matters, 87 percent of the cases were infractions and 12 percent were misdemeanors. The total number of hearings held increased 2.6 percent in 1985. Thus, the judges in the Twenty-Fifth averaged 15,604 hearings each, substantially below the state average of 22,030 hearings per judge.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts reported a 10.9 rise in caseload. Most of the increase was in adult cases which grew 25 percent over 1984. Juvenile cases expanded by 2.1 percent. The largest percentage increase occurred in Waynesboro which recorded a 35 percent jump. Of the 6,870 new juvenile and domestic relations cases, 56.5 percent were juvenile cases while 43.5 percent were adult cases. The juvenile caseload was made up of 36 percent traffic, 34 percent custody/visitation issues, 25 percent delinquency matters, and 5 percent status offenses. Civil support accounted for 40 percent of the adult caseload while misdemeanors represented 29 percent. The number of juvenile and domestic relations hearings decreased slightly (-1.4%) in 1985 yielding an average of 3,957 hearings per judge. This ranked 28th among the 32 districts.

Magistrate activity declined somewhat in 1985. The number of transactions decreased by 2.4 percent while processes issued fell by 3.5 percent. The 29 magistrates reported 23,517 hours of activity receiving 16,722 phone calls and 12,210 in-person inquiries. Eighty-seven percent of the 28,538 requests for process were honored. Of the 13,203 arrest warrants requested, 88 percent were granted. Most (84%) of the arrest warrants issued were for misdemeanors while 12 percent were for felonies. There were 5,314 bonds issued in 1985, three-fourths of which were unsecured. The magistrates also issued 96 search warrants, 168 mental detention orders, 24 civil warrants, and processed 6,700 committals and releases. They also accepted prepayment for 36 traffic infractions and 20 Class 4 misdemeanors.

TWENTY-SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Sixth Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Clarke, Frederick, Page, Rockingham, Shenandoah, and Warren as well as the cities of Harrisonburg and Winchester. As of the 1980 Census, this area contained 209,201 persons. By the year 2000, the population is expected to increase by 25 percent. Over a fourth of the residents of the Twenty-Sixth in 1980 were under the age of 18.

Four judgeships were authorized for the Twenty-Sixth Circuit. Serving in 1985 were judges Henry H. Whiting, Joshua L. Robinson, Robert K. Woltz, and Perry W. Sarver. There are also four judgeships authorized for the general district courts in the Twenty-Sixth. Serving are John F. Ewell, John A. Paul, Norman DeV. Morrison, and David G. Simpson. Judge Morrison replaced Harold G. Potts who retired July 1, 1985. Judge Ewell replaced Robert E. Hayes who retired January 1, 1986. The juvenile and domestic relations courts are served by Judges B. B. Bowers and Carle F. Germelman, Jr. The district court judges in the Twenty-Sixth used 95.2 substitute and retired, recalled judge days in 1985, an average of 15.9 days per judge. Statewide, judges averaged 21.2 days per judge.

The caseload of the Twenty-Sixth Circuit increased by 5 percent in 1985. The number of criminal cases commenced increased 5.3 percent while the number of civil cases increased 4.6 percent. Total cases commenced increased in Frederick (22.6%), Shenandoah (14.9%), Rockingham/Harrisonburg (13.8%), and Winchester (13.2%). The distribution of caseload in the Twenty-Sixth Circuit was 17 percent law, 34 percent equity, 40 percent felony, and 9 percent misdemeanor. Thus, the Twenty-Sixth had a greater percentage of felony cases and a smaller percentage of misdemeanor cases than circuit courts statewide. The number of cases concluded dropped slightly (-1.8%) contributing to the 12.2 percent increase in the number of cases pending at year's end. However, the Twenty-Sixth ranked 28th in the state in the number of pending cases per judge. While the number of juries impaneled fell by 10.2 percent, the judges in the Twenty-Sixth still presided over 6 more impaneled juries each than did circuit judges statewide.

In the general district courts, new cases increased by 4 percent in 1985. New civil cases rose by 6.4 percent, new criminal cases by 5.9 percent, and new traffic cases by 2.8 percent. Total new cases increased in all of the localities except Clarke and Page counties which experienced 10 percent and 11.4 percent decreases respectively. Of the 80,367 new cases, 15 percent involved criminal matters, 63 percent involved traffic cases, and 22 percent were civil cases. Misdemeanors accounted for 81 percent of the criminal cases while felonies represented 8 percent. Most (85.5%) of the traffic cases were infractions while 14 percent were misdemeanors.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts reported 7,772 new cases in 1985, a 6.7 percent increase from 1984. New juvenile cases increased by 12.9 percent while adult cases declined by 1.1 percent. Caseloads increased in Shenandoah (76%), Page (10%), Frederick (1.7%) and Rockingham/Harrisonburg (1%). Almost sixty percent of the juvenile and domestic relations cases involved juvenile matters. Of the 4,593 juvenile cases, 41 percent involved traffic matters, 31 percent concerned delinquency cases, 25 percent custody/visitation issues, and 4 percent were status cases. Civil support cases made up 38 percent of the domestic relations caseload while misdemeanors accounted for 20 percent.

The 18 magistrates in the Twenty-Sixth District reported 18,236 hours of activity in 1985, receiving 9,973 phone calls and 4,650 in-person inquiries. They issued 29,657 processes in response to 35,037 requests, a rate of 84.6 percent. The magistrates issued 93.2 percent of the arrest warrants that were requested. Of the 14,593 arrest warrants issued, 74 percent were misdemeanor warrants while 8 percent were felony warrants. Almost 7,000 bonds were issued, three fourths of them unsecured. There were 152 search warrants issued as well as 361 mental detention orders, 2 civil warrants, and 7,210 committals and releases. The magistrates accepted payment for 59 traffic infractions and 72 Class 4 misdemeanors.

TWENTY-SEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Seventh Circuit serves the counties of Carroll, Floyd, Grayson, Montgomery, Pulaski, and Wythe along with the cities of Galax and Radford. As of the 1980 census, the population of this area was 199,428. By the year 2000, the population is expected to increase by 24 percent. Effective July 1, 1986, the counties of Giles and Bland will be transferred from the Twenty-Ninth Circuit and incorporated into the Twenty-Seventh.

Four judges are authorized for the Twenty-Seventh Circuit. Serving in 1985 were judges Kenneth I. Devore, A. Dow Owens, Duane E. Mink, and Willis A. Woods. The General District Courts in the Twenty-Seventh are authorized three judgeships and receive additional assistance (0.6 judge) from the Twenty-Third Judicial District. Serving in 1985 were George B. Cooley, James H. Joines, and John C. Snidow, Jr. The three authorized judges serving the juvenile and domestic relations courts were William F. Thomas, Jr., Jacque Wayne Pierce, and James L. Tompkins. The district court judges in the Twenty-Seventh used 103.1 substitute and retired, recalled judge days in 1985, an average of 17.2 days each. The state average was 21.2 days per judge.

The circuit court caseload increased 4.1 percent in 1985. Civil cases commenced rose by 4 percent while criminal cases commenced grew by 4.3 percent. Total caseload increased in Montgomery (21%), Pulaski (9.7%), Grayson (3%), and Carroll (0.7%) but decreased in Wythe (-15%), Floyd (-15%), and Radford (-4.7%). The caseload distribution in the Twenty-Seventh Circuit was 17 percent law, 36 percent equity, 33 percent felony, and 14 percent misdemeanor cases. Thus, the caseload was weighted more heavily with criminal cases than were circuit courts statewide. The number of cases concluded increased 17.8 percent in 1985. However, the increase in commenced cases more than offset this leading to a 0.2 percent rise in cases pending at year's end. The number of juries impaneled declined by 7.4 percent.

New cases increased by 13.4 percent in the general district courts in 1985. New civil cases increased by 26.3 percent while traffic cases increased 11.4 percent and criminal cases 5.6 percent. Total new cases increased in all the localities except Pulaski where the number of cases fell slightly (0.9%). The increases in caseload ranged from 33 percent in Galax to 2.1 percent in Floyd. Of the 63,509 new cases, 20.6 percent were criminal cases, 54.8 percent were traffic offenses, and 24.6 percent involved civil matters. Most (85%) of the criminal cases were misdemeanors while 9 percent were felonies. Traffic infractions represented 73 percent of the 34,802 new traffic cases while misdemeanors accounted for almost 26 percent. Of the 34,318 traffic cases concluded in 1985, 40.7 percent were prepayments of traffic infractions. Total hearings held in the general district courts increased slightly (0.2%).

The number of juvenile and domestic relations cases decreased by 6.6 percent in 1985 due to a 10.7 percent decline in the number of juvenile cases. Adult cases increased by 0.3 percent. Total caseload increased in Grayson and Wythe counties by 13.3 percent and 30 percent respectively. Of the 6,397 new juvenile and domestic relations cases, 60 percent were juvenile cases and 40 percent were domestic relations cases. Traffic cases accounted for 37.6 percent of the juvenile cases while custody/visitation cases represented 35.9 percent, delinquency matters 23.9 percent, and status offenses 6.4 percent. Civil support matters represented 37.5 percent of the adult caseload with misdemeanors accounting for 35 percent.

The 23 magistrates in the Twenty-Seventh District recorded 49,297 transactions in 1985, a decrease of 6 percent. However, the number of processes issued increased 3.2 percent. The magistrates received 30,816 phone calls and 13,161 in-person inquiries. Over four-fifths (82.4%) of the transactions resulted in the issuance of process. Ninety percent of the requests for arrest warrants were granted. Of the 17,252 arrest warrants issued, 82.5 percent were for misdemeanors while 9 percent were for felonies. There were 8,620 bonds issued in 1985, with almost 80 percent being unsecured. The magistrates also issued 74 search warrants, 156 mental detention orders, 5,926 committals to jail, and 5,971 releases from jail. They also accepted payment for 150 traffic infractions and 216 class 4 misdemeanors.

THE TWENTY-EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Eighth Circuit is made up of the counties of Smyth and Washington as well as the City of Bristol. The 1980 population of this area was 98,895 with 26,953 juveniles. By the year 2000, it is estimated that this jurisdiction will grow by 18 percent to a population of 116,800.

Two judgeships are authorized for the Twenty-Eighth Circuit. Serving in 1985 were Charles B. Flannagan, II and J. Aubrey Matthews. The general district courts are also authorized two judgeships and were served by David D. Brown and T. L. Hutton, Jr. Serving in the juvenile and domestic relations courts were judges Charles H. Smith, Jr. and Eugene E. Lohman. The four district court judges used 30.2 substitute and retired recalled judge days in 1985, an average of 7.6 days per judge. This represented the second lowest usage of substitute and retired recalled judge days among the 32 districts.

The commenced caseload in the Twenty-Eighth Circuit increased by 3.5 percent in 1985 due to a 16.8 percent rise in criminal case filings. Civil cases declined by 3.7 percent. Caseloads increased both in Smyth and Washington counties but declined in Bristol. The distribution of caseload was 23 percent law, 37 percent equity, 31 percent felony, and 9 percent misdemeanor cases. Thus, when compared to circuit courts statewide, the Twenty-Eighth's caseload is more heavily weighted with civil matters. The number of juries impaneled per judge increased 22.1 percent in 1985, yielding an average of 53 juries impaneled per judge. Thus, the Twenty-Eighth ranked the third highest among the 31 circuits in juries per judge.

The general district court caseload declined by 3.3 percent in 1985. New civil cases increased by 1.3 percent while criminal cases fell 1 percent and traffic cases decreased by 5.5 percent. All three localities in the district reported decreases in total caseload. The new caseload was distributed as 26 percent criminal, 57 percent traffic, and 17 percent civil. This is quite different from the statewide distribution of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic, and 29 percent civil cases. Of the 6,461 criminal cases initiated in 1985, 83 percent were misdemeanors and almost 12 percent were felonies. Over half (53.6%) of the traffic cases were infractions while 44 percent were misdemeanors. In contrast, almost 83 percent of the traffic cases statewide were infractions. As a result of this lower infraction/traffic case ratio, a smaller percentage (30.6%) of the traffic cases concluded were prepayments. Statewide, 38 percent of the traffic cases concluded were ended by prepayment. In 1985, the number of hearings held decreased by 11.3 percent. The number of hearings held per judge was slightly more than half of the statewide average.

Juvenile and domestic relations cases declined slightly (0.5%) in 1985. Juvenile cases decreased by 12.2 percent while adult cases increased 16.1 percent. Total juvenile and domestic relations cases increased substantially in Smyth County (71.5%) but fell in both Washington County (-16.3%) and Bristol (-12.3%). Over half (51.8%) of the court's 5,563 cases involved juvenile matters. Of the 2,882 new juvenile cases, 40 percent involved custody and visitation while 29 percent involved delinquency offenses. More than a third (34.8%) of the domestic relations cases were civil support matters with 26 percent being misdemeanors. Total hearings held declined by 16 percent in 1985.

The Twenth-Eighth District's 10 magistrates reported 12,669 hours of activity in 1985, receiving 6,144 phone calls and 8,432 in-person inquiries. Both the number of requests for processes and the number of processes issued declined. Overall, processes were issued in 86.4 percent of the instances in which they were requested. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 87 for every 100 requests. Of the 7,397 arrest warrants issued, 81 percent were for misdemeanors while 12 percent were felony warrants. The magistrates issued 4,419 bonds in 1985, two-thirds of which were unsecured. They also issued 27 search warrants, 114 mental detention orders, and 5 civil warrants, processed 7,826 committals and releases, and accepted prepayment for 99 traffic infractions and 53 Class 4 misdemeanors.

THE TWENTY-NINTH CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Ninth Circuit encompasses the counties of Bland, Buchanan, Dickenson, Giles, Russell, and Tazewell. As of the 1980 census, this area had 164,226 residents of which 51,271 were juveniles. Population projections suggest that this area will grow by another 44,174 persons by the year 2000. As of July 1, 1986, the counties of Bland and Giles will be transferred from the Twenty-Ninth Circuit to the Twenty-Seventh Circuit.

Three judgeships are authorized for the Twenty-Ninth Circuit. Serving in 1985 were judges Nicholas E. Persin, Glyn R. Phillips, and Robert Lee Powell. Judge Phillips retired in November, 1985 and was replaced by Donald A. McGlothlin, Jr. Judge Powell retired in February, 1986 and was replaced by Donald R. Mullins. The general district courts are also authorized three judgeships. Serving are Thomas J. Bondurant, Frederick H. Combs, and Keary B. Williams. Judge Williams replaced Pat B. Hale who retired on July 1, 1985. Judges J. Wesley McClintock III and Susan Bundy continued to serve in the juvenile and domestic relations court. The district court judges used 73.2 substitute and retired, recalled judge days in 1985, an average of 14.6 days per judge, well below the statewide average of 21.2.

The commenced caseload experienced an overall rise of 3.7 percent during 1985. This was due to a 13.8 percent increase in civil cases. The number of criminal cases declined by 11.3 percent. The increase in total caseload was felt in all of the localities except Dickenson County whose commenced cases fell by 9.8 percent in 1985. Interestingly, the Twenty-Ninth ranked first in the state in number of cases concluded per judge. The caseload distribution in the Twenty-Ninth was 33 percent law, 33 percent equity, 22 percent felony, and 13 percent misdemeanor. Thus, when compared to circuit courts statewide, the caseload is weighted more heavily with civil cases. The number of cases pending at the end of the year decreased from 1984 although the per judge average was still above the state average for pending cases per judge. Juries impaneled increased slightly in 1985 to reach 146 or 49 juries per judge, well above the statewide average of 34.

In the general district courts, the total number of new cases rose by 7.5 percent. Criminal cases increased by 3.3 percent, traffic cases by 7.8 percent, and civil cases by 10.2 percent. Over half (57.7%) of the general district cases were traffic cases while 24.6 percent were civil, and 17.7 percent involved criminal matters. Of the 8,875 criminal cases, 80 percent dealt with misdemeanors while 12.7 percent concerned felony matters. More than four-fifths (81.9%) of the traffic cases were infractions and 17.4 percent were concerned with misdemeanor offenses. The total number of hearings declined by 6 percent in 1985.

New juvenile and domestic relations cases increased by 8.6 percent in 1985 with juvenile cases growing by 8.3 percent and adult cases rising 9.1 percent. Increases were experienced by four of the six localities with Bland and Russell counties reporting decreases in caseload. Juvenile cases constituted over half of the juvenile and domestic relations caseload while domestic relations cases made up the remaining 43.8 percent. Of the 3,656 new juvenile cases, 47 percent were concerned with custody and visitation issues. Delinquency cases made up 24 percent of the caseload while traffic cases accounted for 20 percent. Civil support cases constituted almost 47 percent of the domestic relations caseload with misdemeanors making up 28 percent. Total hearings increased 15.3 percent in the Twenty-Ninth Juvenile and Domestic Relations Courts.

The 20 magistrates in this district reported a 40 percent decrease in requests for process in 1985 and a decline of 8.9 percent in processes issued. They logged 20,929 activity hours, receiving 17,708 phone calls and 8,391 in person inquiries. Processes were issued at a rate of 84 for every 100 requests. Arrest warrants were issued in 96.7 percent of the instances in which they were requested. Of the 10,685 arrest warrants issued, 86 percent were for misdemeanor charges while 12 percent were felony warrants. The magistrates processed 3,540 unsecured bonds (61% of all bonds issued) and 2,273 secured bonds. They also issued 36 search warrants, 115 mental detention orders, 8,773 civil warrants and 9,102 committals and releases. They accepted prepayment for 847 traffic infractions and 218 Class 4 misdemeanors.

THIRTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Lee, Scott, and Wise along with the City of Norton make up the Thirtieth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 Census indicates that this area had a population of 99,644 persons, 29,586 of whom were juveniles. Projections by the Department of Planning and Budget show that the total population is expected to increase to approximately 125,400 residents by the year 2000.

The Thirtieth Circuit is authorized three judgeships. Serving are William C. Fugate, Robert T. Winston, Jr., and John Robert Stump. Judge Fugate replaced Judge S. W. Coleman who was elected to the Court of Appeals in January 1985. Judge Winston replaced Judge M. M. Long who retired February 1, 1986. The general district courts are authorized two judgeships and are served by Monti S. Meeks and R. Larry Lewis. Judge Lewis replaced Judge Fugate who moved to the circuit court in February, 1985. James C. Roberson and David B. Summerfield continue to serve in the juvenile and domestic relations courts. The district court judges in the Thirtieth utilized 55.8 substitute and retired recalled judge days in 1985, an average of 14.3 days per authorized judge. This was below the statewide average of 21.2 days per judge.

The commenced caseload in the circuit courts grew by 4.6 percent in 1985 due largely to an increase (9.6%) in criminal cases. Civil cases rose by 0.6 percent. The number of civil cases grew only in Lee County (5.9%) while declining in Scott (-2.6%) and Wise (-0.5%). The criminal caseload grew in both Lee (26.2%) and Scott (20.9%) but fell slightly in Wise County (-1.6%). The caseload distribution was 23 percent law, 31 percent equity, 22 percent felony, and 24 percent misdemeanor. Thus, the caseload had a lower percentage of felonies than did circuit courts statewide. The Thirtieth Circuit ranked 27th among the 31 circuits in commenced cases per judge. It ranked 30th in concluded cases per judge but ranked 3rd highest in the number of pending cases per judge. The number of concluded cases decreased in 1985 by 7.9 percent contributing to a 10.6 percent increase in pending cases. The number of juries impaneled fell sharply from 208 in 1984 to 157 in 1985. However, there were 52 juries impaneled per judge, well above the statewide average of 34.

The caseload of the general district court fell in 1985. New cases declined 4.3 percent, the result of a 5 percent decrease in criminal cases, a 1.6 decrease in traffic cases, and an 8.8 percent decline in civil cases. Among the 32 districts in the state, the Thirtieth ranked 30th in new cases per judge. Of the 26,244 new cases initiated in 1985, 33 percent were criminal cases, 46 percent were traffic, and 21 percent were civil cases. Misdemeanors accounted for 58 percent of the criminal caseload with felonies accounting for 9 percent. Traffic infractions made up 78 percent of the traffic docket while misdemeanors constituted another 20 percent. Of the 11,950 traffic cases concluded, only 24 percent were prepaid traffic infractions. Statewide, 38 percent of all traffic infractions concluded are prepayments.

In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, new cases fell 4.2 percent. New juvenile cases decreased by 1.1 percent while new adult cases declined by 7 percent. The Thirtieth ranked 26th in the state in new juvenile and domestic relations cases per judge. The distribution of cases was 49 percent juvenile and 51 percent adult. Custody/visitation cases made up almost half of the juvenile caseload while delinquency constituted 24 percent and traffic another 20 percent. On the domestic relations side, almost 40 percent of the new cases involved civil support matters while 18 percent were misdemeanor cases.

The Thirtieth District has 12 magistrates. In 1985, these magistrates reported 16,608 hours of activity, receiving 9,259 calls and 6,055 public inquiries. In response to 30,228 requests, the magistrates issued 25,625 processes. Thus processes were issued at a rate of 85 for every 100 requested. Ninety-five percent of all arrest warrants requested were issued. Most (84%) of the arrest warrants issued were for misdemeanors. Of the 5,102 bonds issued in 1985, 62 percent were unsecured. The magistrates also issued 68 search warrants, 73 mental detention orders, 3,311 civil warrants, and 8,688 committals and releases. Prepayments were received for 17 traffic offenses and 57 Class 4 misdemeanor cases.

THIRTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Thirty-First Circuit serves the county of Prince William and the cities of Manassas and Manassas Park. One of the state's fastest growing areas, the population increased by 50 percent between 1970 and 1980 to reach 166,665 persons. By the year 2000, the population is expected to increase to 275,600.

In 1985, three judgeships were authorized for the Thirty-First circuit. Serving were Judges H. Selwyn Smith, Percy Thornton, Jr., and Herman A. Whisenant, Jr. Effective July 1, 1986, a fourth judgeship will be authorized for the circuit. Judge Frank A. Hoss, Jr. of the general district court has been elected to serve in the new position. In addition to Judge Hoss, the general district courts were served in 1985 by Judges William R. Murphy and Joseph A. Gallagher. William D. Hamblen has been elected to fill the vacancy created by Judge Hoss' move to the circuit court. The juvenile and domestic relations court has two authorized judgeships and is served by Raymond O. Kellam and Patrick D. Molinari. The district court judges in the Thirty-First used a total of 46.8 substitute and retired, recalled judge days in 1985. This was an average of 9.4 days per judge and was considerably below the statewide average of 21.2 days per judge.

The circuit court caseload increased 12.8 percent in 1985. Criminal cases commenced rose by 19 percent while civil cases grew by 8.9 percent. The Thirty-First Circuit had the highest caseload per judge (1,632) of any of the 31 circuits. Of the 2,934 new cases, 22 percent were law cases, 38 percent were equity cases, 25 percent were felony cases, and 15 percent were misdemeanor cases. This distribution was weighted more heavily with civil cases than were circuit courts statewide. The number of cases concluded increased by 10.5 percent from 3,923 cases in 1984 to 4,333 cases in 1985. Of the 2,537 civil cases concluded, 78 percent were disposed of within one year of filing while over 90 percent ended within two years. Three-fourths of the criminal cases concluded reached disposition within 5 months of initiation. The number of juries impaneled declined significantly (-24.8%) in 1985. However, the average number of juries impaneled per judge (33) was similar to the statewide average of 34.

In the general district court, new cases rose by 16.8 percent. This was due to large increases in traffic cases (21.4%) and in criminal cases (17%). New civil cases declined by 5.9 percent from the previous year. Of the 10,965 new criminal cases, 82 percent involved misdemeanors while 16 percent concerned felonies. Most of the traffic cases (86%) were infractions while 12 percent were misdemeanors. The total number of hearings held increased by 2.6 percent in the Thirty-First General District Court in 1985.

New juvenile and domestic relations cases increased by 20.9 percent in 1985. The Thirty-First thus ranked highest in the state in the number of total juvenile and domestic relations cases per judge as well as in the number of juvenile cases per judge. New juvenile cases increased 22.8 percent while adult cases increased 16.7 percent. Of the 8,198 juvenile cases, 41 percent were traffic cases, 30 percent involved delinquency matters, while 22 percent concerned custody and visitation issues. Forty-four percent of the domestic relations cases involved civil support matters, 26 percent were misdemeanors, almost 10 percent were felony cases, while 18 percent were capias/show cause proceedings. Hearings in juvenile and domestic relations cases increased 8.3 percent in 1985. The Thirty-First District ranked 3rd in the state in terms of juvenile and domestic relations hearings per judge (8,217 hearings).

The eleven magistrates in the Thirty-First district logged 17,781 hours of activity in 1985, receiving 30,870 phone calls and 16,038 in person inquiries. The magistrates issued 44,642 processes in response to 53,399 requests, a rate of 83.6 processes for every 100 requested. Ninety-three percent of the requested arrest warrants were actually issued. Of the 12,202 arrest warrants issued, 73 percent were for misdemeanors, 14 percent were summonses, while 13 percent were for felonies. Almost 10,000 bonds were issued in 1985 of which 71 percent were unsecured. In addition, the magistrates in the Thirty-First District issued 82 search warrants, 116 mental detention orders, 414 civil warrants, 3,725 subpoenas, and 15,518 committals and releases. They also accepted prepayment for 1,990 traffic infractions and 664 class 4 misdemeanors.
